

BOY KING FLEES BUCHAREST'S TERROR AS FIGHTING, RIOTS SPREAD IN RUMANIA

Artillery Fire Heard Across Bulgarian Border; Glover's Secretary Denies She Wrote Letter

U. S. Questions Authenticity of The Document

Resting Case, Defense Contents There Was No Fraud.

Authenticity of a letter signed by J. G. Glover, stating that it is the State Highway Board's practice to tear down and move buildings when a prison camp is abandoned, was questioned by the government yesterday as Glover's mail fraud trial closed its fourth week.

A former chief of state prison forces, the defendant is under a 20-count federal indictment alleging he defrauded the state of $10,000 by having three state-financed houses built on land he owned adjacent to prison camps.

Resting its case yesterday, the defense contended there was no fraud, as it is the board's custom to tear down and move camp buildings when work in the vicinity is finished.

State Position.
A letter establishing the defense's point was allegedly written last December 15 and signed by Glover. Occasion was the accession of L. L. Patten to his short chairmanship of the Highway Board. Object of the letter was to restate to all department heads the board's position regarding abandonment of camps.

Miss Virginia Brannon, Glover's secretary at the time, took the stand yesterday to state she had not written the letter in question. December 15, she remembered, was the "Gone With the Wind" holiday, and was observed by the Highway Department. The letter, though, bore her initials, V. B.

"Did you write this letter," asked United States Attorney Lawrence Camp, waving a copy before her.

"No, sir," she replied.

Shown by Glover.

"Was this letter written on the typewriter you were using?"

"No, sir," she answered.

"Is it punctuated as you do it?"

"No," she said.

Miss Brannon first saw the copy five or six weeks ago when Glover called her into the office to show its position in the Dade county camp files. He explained his action by stating that Herman Watson, Highway Board member, might ask for it some day and that he thought she should know where it was.

Her curiosity aroused, she went back to the files, she testified, looked at the copy again and found she had not written it, though her initials were on it.

Further questioning by Camp developed that she had charge of office filing, but did not file that copy, that the letter was not filed.

27 Are Feared Dead In Ohio Mine Blast

By The Associated Press.

CADIZ, Ohio, Nov. 29.—Blast-made rock falls tonight slowed down rescue crews as fears mounted for the lives of 25 to 27 coal miners trapped far underground in Ohio's deepest shaft mine.

Caught without warning by a terrific explosion felt throughout the mammoth mine of the Ohio & Pennsylvania Coal Company, eight miles northeast of here, the workers in Section "12 North" were cut off from escape by deadly gas and tons of rock, coal and earth.

Company officials said 22 men were missing, but a check of the lamp room—where the miners get headlamps for working in the dark pits—showed 26 unreported and workmen in charge expressed belief that 34 men may have been in the mine.

Reports of miners that one body had been located later proved unfounded. Adolph Pacifico, district United Mine Workers' vice president, said, though, that the trapped men had only "one chance"—that by reaching a finished mine room.

About 178 miners working in other shafts fled to safety.

"We haven't heard a thing from the men," said a company spokesman here. "Rescue crews are working as fast as conditions will permit toward the scene in Section 'North 12.'"

E. H. Snider, assistant manager of the company's Cleveland headquarters, declared "we don't know whether they are alive or dead."

Protected by masks from mine gas—listed tentatively as the blast cause—expert Ohio and Pennsylvania rescue crews, aided by local miners, worked feverishly trying to clear a way to the entombed men.

Snider was unable to advance a cause for the explosion, but observed that the rich coal mining country in the vicinity of Cadiz "is dotted with oil and gas."

The mishap was the second serious Ohio mine disaster in nine months. The worst blast in the state's history occurred March 16 at near-by Willow Grove, killing 72 men.

Draft Boards To Quiz a New Five Per Cent

Forms To Be Mailed by December 7 for Jan- uary Call.

Georgia's local draft boards were ordered yesterday to mail deferment questionnaires to an additional 5 per cent of the state's 397,000 registrants before December 7.

This action will give selective service boards an opportunity to complete much of the detailed classification work before the state's second draft call in January. It will bring the total number of forms mailed to 10 per cent of the total.

At the same time occupational deferment advisors for Georgia planned to meet Monday with Dr. J. E. McDaniel, of Georgia Tech, who is southern representative of the National Defense Commission.

Re-employment Angle.

Their conference will deal with the re-employment in private enterprise of men who are called to military service and then turned down for the Army because of physical defects brought out by examinations at induction centers.

Lieutenant Colonel James H. Skelton, of the state staff, declared that this move was in line with selective service regulations which urge private industry to re-employ drafted men after their year of service is up. "Men who give up jobs to go in the Army, and then are not accepted, should also be given every chance to get those jobs back," Skelton said.

State Advisors Lieut. Col. P. S. Moses and Major Charles J. Brockman expect, however, less than 5 per cent of the draftees to fail physical exams given by Army doctors.

6,000 From Georgia.

It was also indicated at headquarters that Georgia would be asked by Fourth Corps Area to furnish approximately 6,000 men during January, February and March of 1941. This means that one-half of the state's 12,792 quota for the first year will be filled by spring and, it was said, will be largely filled with volunteers.

Local boards throughout the state who were not included in the December call were calling on state selective service headquarters for quotas. Only 88 boards of the 188 in the state were asked to contribute to the 412 men in the call.

Colonel Skelton, who is acting in the absence of Adjutant General Marion Williamson, said that most of the volunteers from all of the local boards would be accepted by January. By February it is believed all of the volunteers will have been taken.

"Mortars and hand grenades met our Evzone mountaineer fighters, and during the day we were unable to move a foot, so deadly was the fire of the Italian snipers. During the night our mountain guns began shelling, setting the pine trees blazing and lighting up the whole plateau."

Greek forces then stormed the position during the darkness and took it after six hours of fierce fighting. Losses were said to have been heavy on both sides.

The Italians are said now to be fighting a defensive battle along the whole south and central fronts, using fresh troops who are heavily armed.

West of the Koritza Heights on the far northern front, heavy fighting was raging in the first snowfall. It was said that if the storm continues it will seal the mountain passes.

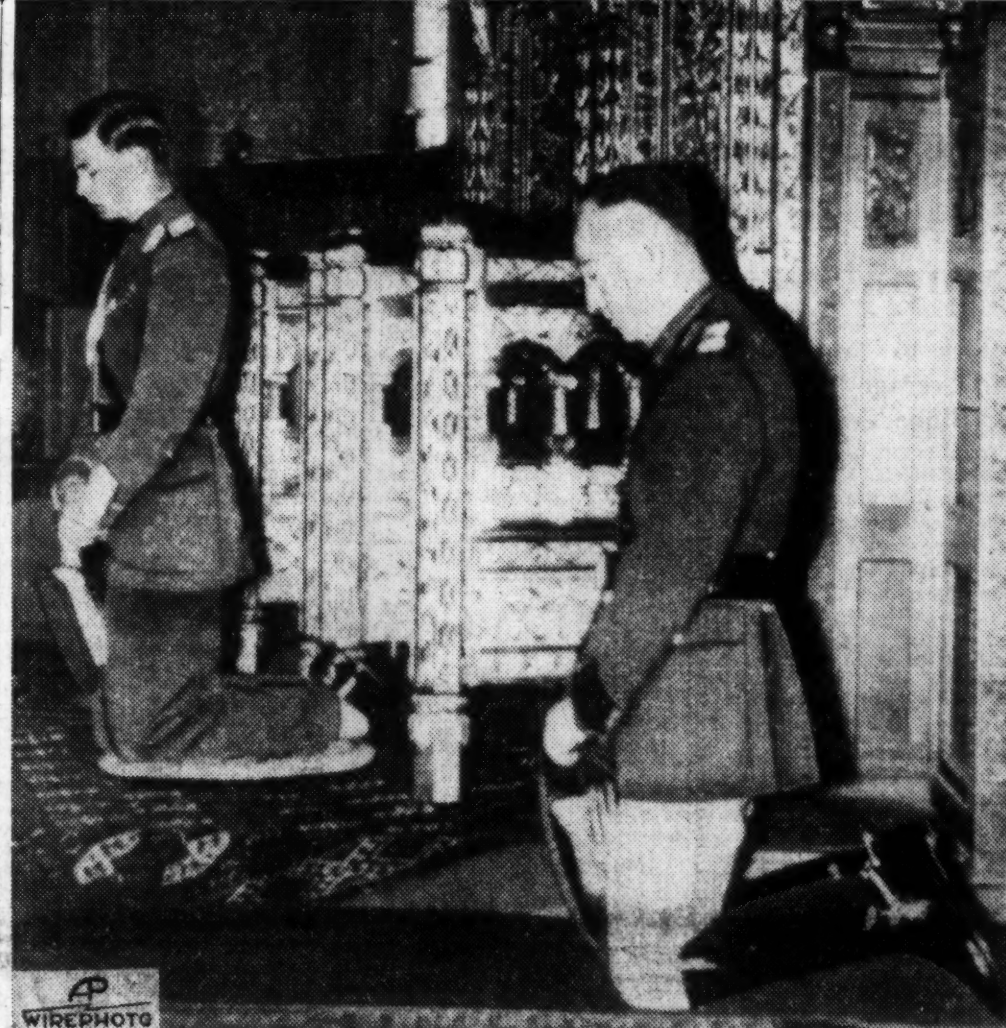

Italian prisoners reaching headquarters behind the front lines were said to have complained about the bitterly icy posts they were forced to hold in the heights beyond Koritza. Many southern Italians were said to be dying from exposure.

Military quarters here said that more fighting planes certainly would speed up the Greek advance since Italian bombers at present are being used to cover the Italian retreat.

It was reported that Greek pilots yesterday flew a reconnoitered Italian plane captured at Koritza against a squadron of Fascist bombers.

British bombing planes, in a widespread offensive designed to dominate the skies above Italy's vital disembarkation ports and inland bases in Albania, scattered hundreds of explosives over Durazzo, Santi Quaranti and Elbasan during the past 36 hours, an RAF communique said.

British aviation now dominates the entire Adriatic sky, the Athens radio reported.

Greek Troops Drive Forward In Battle for Southern Albania

Athens Forces Set Trees Afire on Plateau, Then Attack During Night; Captured Italians Complain of Bitter Cold.

ATHENS, Saturday, Nov. 30.—Greek forces, facing a steady stream of fresh Italian troops, were reported today to have won an "important initial success" in a fierce battle for southern Albania by storming a heavily fortified wooded plateau commanding the road to Argirocastro.

The Evzones, hardy mountaineer fighters, won the first round against an Italian "death battalion" when the key position on the wooded plateau was abandoned after a bloody 48-hour fight with the Fascist "do or die" volunteers.

A Greek officer leading the operation, during which he was wounded twice, was said to have described the plateau as "the hardest position we have tackled yet."

"Every tree and bush seemed to be covering machinegun nests," he said. "Mortars and hand grenades met our Evzone mountaineer fighters, and during the day we were unable to move a foot, so deadly was the fire of the Italian snipers. Britain Rules Mediterranean After Victory

Italian Effort To Aid Troops in Africa Beaten.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(P)—The British Navy's Mediterranean offensive apparently has broken an Italian attempt to establish new lines of communication with the Fascist African forces, informed Britons declared today, and has put Britain in substantial control of the whole of that strategic sea.

This evaluation of the meaning of the battle off Sardinia, officially said here to have damaged six Italian warships, offered one of the first direct suggestions as to the reason for the presence in that area of a Fascist fleet of such considerable size.

When the British fell upon them last Wednesday, these experts said, the Italians were attempting to create an alternate sea route to reach Libya—perhaps by way of the French territorial waters of Tunisia—and thus to reinforce and reactivate Marshal Rodolfo Graziani's long-stalled offensive in Egypt.

In claiming that the whole of the Mediterranean now is under British domination, these persons declared that British possession of the Greek island of Crete has blocked the Fascists off from the Aegean and their Dodecanese island bases as well.

All this, they declared, has at last turned the entire Mediterranean balance in British favor—a balance which was sharply upset by the French surrender because of the fact that the French navy in the early days of the war had the assignment of guarding the western end of the Mediterranean.

His condition was said to be weak, giving his doctors great concern.

Germans Rush More Men to Balkan Capital

2,000 Reported Dead as Fighting Approaches Civil War.

By The Associated Press.
AT THE HUNGARIAN-RUMANIAN FRONTIER, Nov. 29.—Flight of Boy King Mihai, heavy loss of life in fighting at three Transylvania cities, a mounting death list in the Iron Guard's blood purge and a massing of Rumanian and German troops in Bucharest were reported from Rumania tonight.

Artillery fire was heard late today in Ruse, Bulgaria, across the Danube river from Rumania, and travelers from the Rumanian frontier village of Giurgiu brought reports that the Antonescu government was using heavy guns to crush an Iron Guard rebellion.

Houses in Ruse were shaken and windows were cracked by the explosions. Whether they were all caused by artillery, however, could not be confirmed.

The travelers said disorders and assassinations were continuing throughout Rumania.

Guardists Berserk.

They added that "at least a hundred" persons had been assassinated in Bucharest by berserk Iron Guardists and said there were reports in that capital that an equal number had been slain in the provinces.

The police, said these informants, clashed with Iron Guardists at Ostrov and after bloody fighting, overpowered them and arrested great numbers. At another town the Guardists were said to have closed Jewish stores and kidnapped many Jews. Jewish women, it was added, were ordered to clean the streets.

In Bucharest, General Ion Antonescu, Rumania's chief of state, was reported taking no chances; German troops were said to be guarding the residences of his friends and those old regime politicians whom the Guard had sworn to kill.

2,000 Feared Dead.

(Fighting between the Rumanian army and Iron Guardists in several cities is verging on civil war, according to diplomatic advices received in Budapest, and German intervention in Rumania was believed imminent, the United Press reported. In addition to clashes with the army, the Iron Guardists, in raids in many Rumanian cities, were said to have murdered.

Savannah Base Rapidly Nears Its Completion

4,000 Workmen Build New City To House Warplanes.

By HAROLD TYLER.

SAVANNAH, Ga., Nov. 29.—(AP) Four thousand workmen are hammering a new city into being on the outskirts of this oldest Georgia city—a nest for the dull gray warplanes that roar restlessly in and out all hours of the day and night.

Six weeks ago raw land, splashed with underbrush and a few shrunken trees, ringed the Savannah municipal airport.

Today roads for trucks and rails for locomotives trace an even pattern through the same acres. Buildings complete even to the termite-deterrent metal screens on the foundation blocks stand in ordered rows, with lighting, sewerage, drainage.

Proud of Job.

The Army is proud of this big job and of Major Michael Grimaldi, construction quartermaster. His task was launched October 4 and by January 1 he figures it will be completed and turned over to 4,000 soldiers—most of them now living in tents—who will man this key air base in the nation's rapidly expanding defense network.

All approaches to the field are guarded. The Army ships are sprawled on a flat field exposed only dimly to sightseers, warned away with the information that only government cars and military men may come closer.

Almost complete. Major Grimaldi's was the job of carrying out the plans for 182 buildings, now almost complete. Fixing a sewage disposal system was a problem because of water six under ground surface. Centrifugal pumps finally solved it.

Spur rail lines brought up 40 to 50 freight cars of material daily. A row of warehouses appeared almost overnight, erected by builders who stayed on the job day and night.

It was a coincidence that the rush job of getting an Army air base ready for 4,000 men required the exertions of a like number of civilian employees.

7 of Rumanian Legation Quit Over Terror

London Group Deplores Antonescu Policy, 'Shameful Horrors.'

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(UP)—Seven members of the Rumanian legation here telegraphed their resignations from the diplomatic service to Bucharest today in protest against General Ion Antonescu's pro-German policy and the "reign of terror in Rumania."

Included was the resignation of Baron Starcea, first secretary of the legation. The former Rumanian minister to London, Virgil Tilea, who resigned sometime ago, made a statement to the press appealing to the world not to judge Rumania "by the shameful horrors now being perpetrated there."

"A few young men suffering from a European mental disease have committed crimes at the instigation of Himmler (Heinrich Himmler, head of German police), Tilea said. "Ninety-nine per cent of Rumanians condemn these acts of lunatics, which prove the weakness and unpopularity of Rumania's pro-Nazi regime. Today practically all Rumania is praying for an Allied victory, which alone can grant it freedom."

Upshaws Issue Message to Sympathizers

Letters to Young Couple Average 100 a Day Since Tragedy.

SPECIAL TO THE CONSTITUTION.

CARTERSVILLE, Ga., Nov. 29.—Although they are still unwilling to believe that they have really lost their son, Murray Jr., and don't want to admit that never again will he and his dog, Nicky, play outside their door, Mr. and Mrs. Murray Upshaw yesterday issued a special message of appreciation for the kindnesses which have been shown them by literally thousands of people the country over.

Letters continue to come in from all parts of the nation. Telegrams and letters by the score have come from every section of the country, from tourists passing through the state, and from parents the nation over. An average of 100 letters a day have arrived since the child and his dog were derailed away November 8. These have come in the form of poems, cards, personal letters and other tokens of sympathy. Few of the people sending these are known to the Upshaws.

They are deeply touched by this spontaneous response to their loss. It has made their sorrow much easier to bear, they say, and they want the world to know of their gratitude.

"Nicky," too, is mystified by it all. He continues to play, alone, and he often seems to search for the little playmate with whom he remained on the mountainside for almost four days, while thousands of people joining in the search for the missing child, wondered why he did not return.

Dies, Roosevelt Hold Conference

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)

Representative Dies, Democrat, Texas, discussed the work of his committee on un-American activities with President Roosevelt today and later said his investigation would continue with the cooperation of other government agencies.

"Fuller exposure of Fifth Column activity is necessary," he told reporters after his return to the capitol, "except where innocent persons are involved and where there is evidence that might lead to convictions."

Willkie Gives Toast to Health Of President

CALLS FOR NATION TO REMOVE VILIFICATION FROM ISSUES.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(UP)—Wendell L. Willkie pleaded tonight for the nation to clear the channels of democracy by removing personal vilification from public issues, so that the nation may be free to show its strength in the greatest test it ever has met.

He ended his speech by bringing his audience of 3,600 persons to their feet in a toast to "the health and happiness of the President of the United States."

The defeated Republican presidential candidate delivered a 30-minute extemporaneous address at the 32d annual dinner meeting of the National Interfraternity Conference. The speech was broadcast over the NBC Red network.

Willkie, who interrupted a Florida vacation to fly here today, said he favored all possible help for "those fighting men of Britain." He called for full public discussion of United States fiscal problems and the issues involved in starting the "birds of commerce" flying again so that they can "carry with them the seeds of democracy."

Prior to his address, Willkie was presented with the diamond pin of the Phi Delta Pi, honorary legal society, whose membership is granted in recognition of scholarship and accomplishment. It was the second time the society ever had made the diamond award. The first recipient was President Franklin Roosevelt.

The Beta Theta Pi fraternity also honored Willkie tonight, awarding him a badge.

While he considered aid for Britain as being as important to this nation as building United States armaments, Willkie said he realized that other people held a different opinion, thus creating an "honest issue" which should be discussed freely.

And calling each other "warmongers" on one hand or "fifth columnists or Nazis or something else" on the other will not help solve the issue, he said.

Draft Opponent Relents

AFTER NINE DAYS IN JAIL

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Angelo Mongiore, 23, decided that registration under the national selective service act was simply the government's way of "taking inventory"—and that got him out of jail today.

Agreeing to sign a registration blank, he had his 18-month federal prison sentence reduced to the nine days he had spent in custody after conviction for his refusal to comply with the act.

Mongiore, a janitor and the father of one child, had refused to register on the ground that he was opposed to war and believed rather in the supremacy of the "power of love." Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell suggested to him at that time that love was not "bullet-proof."

Atlanta Leaders Pay Tribute To General Booth

Salvation Army Pioneer Guest Here on 50th Anniversary.

Things have changed considerably since 50 years ago when a shabby little band in blue uniforms used to thump a drum on the street corners of Atlanta and a Salvation Army lassie known as "Pleading Minnie" was harassed by the police because some citizens thought that a woman had no right to preach.

The Salvation Army in Atlanta is no longer a shabby little street corner band, but the headquarters of a great organization spread throughout 15 southern states and the District of Columbia.

And last night at the Ansley hotel, the leading men and women of the town, judges, bankers, lawyers, ministers, gathered to pay tribute to a woman who has preached all her life.

Crowd Fascinated. Her name was Evangeline Booth, and in an address that held a huge crowd fascinated she told of the beginnings of the Army, the dream of its greatness that inspired her father and mother, the curses and beatings that she suffered without a whimper, the magnificent organization that it became, bringing Christ to the mean and lowly in every corner of the world.

The Army, she told them, has changed not a whit from what it was from its very beginning. It has merely grown, and still is growing, now more than ever before as heart-sick people, weary of the pain and tears found under the banners of destructive war, seek peace and consolation beneath Salvation's banner of blood and fire.

The dinner marked the golden jubilee of the Salvation Army in Atlanta, its 50th year of service held at the first small meeting was held on the corner of Spring and Marietta streets.

Preston S. Arkwright, president of the Salvation Army advisory board in Atlanta, presided at the meeting, and former Governor John M. Slaton introduced General Booth.

Jubilee Continues. The jubilee, which has brought Salvation Army officers to Atlanta from throughout the south, will continue today with a young people's program at Wesley Memorial church, beginning at 2:30.

General Booth, a whose mental and physical vigor seems undimmed by time, will speak at this meeting, her subject to be "The Damascus Balcony."

Tomorrow at Wesley Memorial church at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. the sacred service of the golden jubilee will be held, and at 9 o'clock on Sunday morning the flag will be raised at Five Points and Mayor Hartsfield's proclamation proclaiming the day "Salvation Army Sunday" will be read.

Many Salvation Army officers will hold three lines to repeat, and I had forgotten those the night of dress rehearsal.

The atmosphere became much cooler. Obviously I lacked talent and poise. After a long pause Mr. David thanked me for my trouble and said he was afraid they would have to pass me up this time but wished me better luck next time.

As I walked out, the scout asked my age. Upon receiving my answer he said, "You've got plenty of time."

A comforting thought!

Girl Reporter Tries To Get In the Movies

Finds Out How Talent Scout Interviews Aspirants.

By HELEN CLARK.

So you want to be a movie star?

At least 500 Atlanta girls want to be and to find out what the girl who wants to be a movie star has to do and be I joined the army of applicants yesterday.

Incognito, I sought out the MGM talent scout at the Georgian Terrace. It would have been easy enough to get an audience under the guidance of Lee Rogers, The Constitution movie critic, but the city editor wanted me to be the movie moguls in their den and write about it just as it happened.

Waited Turn.

They say "gentlemen prefer blondes," so I thought my blond tresses—let's call them tresses to be more movie-like—might get me an early audience. But they have so many blondes in Hollywood that I was just another blonde and so I waited my turn.

The other girls there for a screen test seemed very much at ease. I was nervous because I feared someone might come in who would recognize me and disclose me as a reporter in the disguise of a movie-struck girl.

When I had filled out the application blank I sat down next to a pretty girl possessing brown curly hair and blue eyes. Though she wore a becoming blue wool suit with a rose wool sweater, she expressed regret she hadn't worn black as I because, she thought it photographs better. She seemed almost as nervous as I, so I inquired if she had had any dramatic experience. She replied only in high school, further stating she wondered what she was doing in such a place. In about five minutes a handsome brunet man called out my name and I strolled with attempted nonchalance to the "inner sanctum."

Answers Questions. "What's your name?" said Mr. David, the talent scout. I replied in a shaky voice explaining my voice wasn't up to par because of a cold. "You can speak louder than that, regardless," he said. So I feebly repeated my name. "Where do you live?" he further questioned. I named a Atlanta movie district.

Each question made me feel more and more uneasy although my genial questioner was doing his utmost to make me feel at home. If I could only sit down, I thought, for when I entered I was told to stand against three screens, which were placed at one end of the palm room, facing an audience consisting of two men and a woman.

Tells Experience. "Have you had any dramatic experience?" said Mr. David. I stated I had had several roles in high school and college productions. "Where did you go to college?" the scout queried. The University of Georgia, I answered. "Where I had had a minor role in the play 'Romance.'" At this remark the woman spoke up and asked if Mr. Crouse had been my director. With my answer to her query I put my foot in it, for I said Edward Crouse had directed me in my momentary stage career, but was afraid he wouldn't recommend me highly because I had only three lines to repeat, and I had forgotten those the night of dress rehearsal.

The atmosphere became much cooler. Obviously I lacked talent and poise. After a long pause Mr. David thanked me for my trouble and said he was afraid they would have to pass me up this time but wished me better luck next time.

As I walked out, the scout asked my age. Upon receiving my answer he said, "You've got plenty of time."

Girl, 20, Sentenced

For Insult to Flag

TOMS RIVER, N. J., Nov. 29.—(AP)—A 20-year-old girl convicted of defiling the Stars and Stripes was sentenced to a term of from one to two years in a reformatory today and shortly thereafter her counsel announced he would appeal the conviction to the state supreme court.

The defendant, Helga Schleuter, of Southard, won her freedom on $2,500 bail posted by her parents and a friend, Mrs. Sarah Le Compe, of Lakewood, after she had languished an hour in jail.

Miss Schleuter was convicted earlier this month of throwing the flag to the ground during a fireman's parade. Her counsel blamed "too many beers."

Fulton Board Stands Shy of Market Fight

State's Proposal To Give Wood to County Is Turned Down.

The Fulton county commissioners want no part of the controversy now raging over the development of a Farmer State Market on Sylvan road, near Murphy avenue—even if it provides wood to keep Atlanta's poor from suffering from the cold.

At a special session yesterday, the commissioners turned "thumbs down" on a proposal of the state to donate to the county large quantities of timber from the cleared land.

Dr. C. R. Adams, West End commissioner, led the opposition, but County Commissioner I. Gloer Hailey pointed out that "hundreds of families here need this wood to keep them warm."

Commissioner J. A. Ragdale sided with Hailey but Dr. Adams stuck to his guns and the board finally decided that they would notify the welfare department that the wood was there if they wanted to go and get it and directed Secretary Frank Fling to find out if other surplus wood in the county is available and notify the welfare board.

Screen Scout To Take Stroll On Peachtree

May Find 'Movie Type' Girl Who Failed To Take Test.

By LEE ROGERS.

If a distinguished-looking, gray-haired man stops you on Peachtree street or in some downtown store today and asks if you'd like to be in the movies, don't be alarmed, girls.

The man will be on the level. Charles David, chief camera man for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's eastern talent-searching crew, announced last night he was going out looking for new movie types downtown today.

"I heard James Montgomery Flagg made some statement about the prettiest girls in the world being in New York, but that they all came from Peachtree street in Atlanta. I'm not going to miss signing up some talented girl, just because she isn't at the moment. Interested enough to come to me, David said.

It's all a part of his technique. When he is in a city looking for talent, he reserves Saturday morning for strolling down the town's main thoroughfare and in their larger stores. Those whose looks he likes, he will ask to come out to the Georgian Terrace's palm room between 2 and 4 o'clock this afternoon or 7 and 9 o'clock tonight for interviews.

Tomorrow night those girls who have passed the first interview will report at 7 o'clock for a final elimination for screen tests. Actual screen tests will be made of all girls with possibilities.

The girl making the best screen test will be the guest of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and Selznick International Pictures, represented by Miss Vivian Leigh, at the anniversary premiere of "Gone With the Wind," December 12, at which time proceeds of the performance will go to the British War Relief.

Later this girl will be entertained with a free trip to Hollywood. All tests of girls made here will be forwarded to Hollywood for final examination by directors. However, no one is promised a contract.

Selected scripts from "Gone With the Wind" will be used for screen tests.

This afternoon, tonight and tomorrow afternoon are the last chance you girls have to seek the all-important interview.

You don't have to live in Atlanta. Yesterday there was a girl from Huntsville, Ala., whose aunt had read about the talent search in The Constitution and had telegraphed her niece to come to Atlanta for a test. There was another girl from Philadelphia, Pa., and still another from St. Louis, Mo. They happened to be temporarily living here.

Visitors Bring City More Than $4,500,000

Increase of Tourist Trade to $12,000,000 Called Possible.

Conventions and tourist trade are a lucrative community business, and last year the estimated expenditure of the 495 conventions held in Atlanta was $4,522,533.75, E. S. Papy, president of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, said yesterday at the final meeting of this year of the Atlanta Convention and Visitors' Bureau.

Asking that a concerted effort be made to increase this business, Mr. Papy declared that from $10,000,000 to $12,000,000 cash in tourist trade can be brought to Atlanta. He said a convention dollar is divided with 31 cents to retail stores; 23 cents to hotels; 18 cents to restaurants; 10 cents for gasoline and oil; 8 cents for amusements, and 10 cents for miscellaneous items.

"Tourist trade Mr. Papy said was rated as 11 per cent greater than the clothing business; 45 per cent greater than printing and publishing businesses; 60 per cent greater than the lumber business; 185 per cent greater than the baking industry; 222 per cent greater than the shoe industry; and 518 per cent greater than the cotton crop of 1933.

Improvements that will bring these businesses to Atlanta include a better physical appearance of the city; adequate exhibit space for conventions; pamphlets and posters distributed for tourist appeal; the preservation of landmarks, such as antebellum homes and battlefield parks; tract tourists; and the completion of the Stone Mountain Memorial, which is probably the greatest magnet in the city or in the entire south, Mr. Papy said.

Faber Bolling, president, said that during the week beginning yesterday an average of one convention a day will be held here. They are the Southern States Cat Club and the Southern Salesmen Candy Club, which will be concluded today; the Civil Pilot Training Association, the Southern Writers' Association, and the Georgia Bottlers' Association, next Wednesday through Friday; and the Georgia Real Estate Association and the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues to be held at the end of next week.

British Open Major Offensive In Attempt To Crush Italians

Triple Attack Italy, Expecting a Short War, Now in Dire Need of Foodstuffs Knockout Blow

Early Rome Drive on Greece Appears Unlikely, Simpson Says

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON.

Conflicting testimony from London and Rome obscures details of the new Italian-British naval clashes in the Mediterranean, but not the vital significance of those engagements.

Britain has already launched a triple offensive against Italy. She is obviously now preparing to attempt a knockout attack there.

The rising scale of British air force participation in the Greek-Italian campaign would not of itself imply that even British air blows from Greek bases at naval and other targets in Italy might have more limited objectives than a drive to shatter Italian morale at home.

When they are coupled, however, with what clearly appears to be a British naval effort to blast Italy's surface fleet out of the way, it seems unquestionable that London strategists have decided on a major offensive effort in the Mediterranean.

It seems probable, as the extent of the Italian disaster becomes clearer, that in any case a new Fascist offensive against Greece within a period of months is unlikely.

It seems likely, also, that the Italian drive at the Suez canal through Egypt, already stalled for many weeks in the Sidi Barrani region, has been further checked by the Fascist fiasco against Greece.

A startling glimpse of Italy's plight at home has now come from American official sources to hint at the real objective of British moves in the Mediterranean. It reveals the economic havoc already wrought in Italy by the British blockade, citing rigid food rationing and rising prices, both tending to cut heavily into Italian national morale.

That Washington summary, attributed to diplomatic sources, discloses the price Il Duce Mussolini already has paid for overoptimism as to Hitler's ability to finish off Britain quickly once France was knocked out of the war.

Italy, Expecting a Short War, Now in Dire Need of Foodstuffs

Cotton Reserves Almost Completely Gone; Other Vital War Supplies Also Running Short, U. S. Agriculture Report Shows.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—A dark picture of the economic outlook for Italy this winter because of the British blockade was painted today in an agriculture department report which said this was to be expected.

Almost total depletion of cotton reserves by the end of 1940. Probable exhaustion of rubber, jute and wool supplies soon thereafter.

Further food rationing which already limits the sale and serving of meat to two days a week, restricts servings of bread in restaurants, and prohibits sale of coffee to civilians.

The study, prepared by Dr. N. William Hazen, on the basis of secret diplomatic reports, explained that Italy, presumably expecting an early end to the war, entered the current conflict with "little or no reserves" of vital agricultural products.

The British blockade, more than any other war factor, has disorganized the Italian economic structure, Dr. Hazen said. He explained that normally about 84 per cent of all Italian imports arrive by sea—80 per cent through the Strait of Gibraltar which Britain controls.

The blockade has cut off all Italian imports of coffee and meats, 95 per cent of Italian purchases of fats and oils, and about 70 per cent of the normal imports of cereals," the study said. "Of the agricultural raw materials, rubber and jute are completely cut off, and 95 per cent of the normal imports of raw cotton and wool and 75 per cent of hides and skins are now unobtainable."

Legion's Fun Group To Meet in Columbia

COLUMBIA, S. C., Nov. 29.—(AP)

The mid-Atlantic promenade and wreck of the Forty and Eight, composed of voyageurs from New Jersey to Georgia, will be held here April 18-19. General Chairman John H. Nichols, of Columbia, announced today. The organization is the American Legion's fun group.

Chef de Chemin de Fer Hilliard, of Denver, Col., and another national official, Secretary Charles W. Ardrey, of Indianapolis, Ind., have accepted invitations to be present.

British, Nazi Ships Clash in The Channel

Germans Fled at High Speed Toward Brest, London Says.

LONDON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—Light British forces engaged German warships in the channel and pursued them at high speed toward the Nazi-held port of Brest, France, the admiralty announced today. "Damage . . . upon the enemy" was claimed. Damage to a British warship was acknowledged.

The admiralty also announced that a British naval vessel with aircraft co-operation had successfully bombed targets at Ras Alula in coastal Italian Somaliland, adding:

"Considerable damage was done to enemy depots and two large fires were started. No damage or casualties were sustained by our force."

While British claims to these various successes at sea were disputed in both Germany and Italy, an Associated Press correspondent's dispatch from Berlin reported only today that neutral observers there were expressing belief that the Mediterranean area was coming so thoroughly under British control that a new problem was being created for the Axis.

These observers, the dispatch added, were wondering how long Germany would wait before making an effort to bring that end of the war into the pattern of hard, swift success followed by the German armies in the west.

The German story of the chan-

RESCUE IN THE WAR AT SEA—This is a photograph of a dramatic rescue at sea, according to Canadian sources. It shows survivors of a torpedoed merchantman being picked up by a Canadian destroyer. Censor-approved information accompanying the picture included no other identifying details.

nel engagement, apparently the same one referred to by the British, said it was an action of yesterday, rather than today, between destroyers close to the English coast. German sources asserted that two British destroyers were torpedoed and four other vessels—including one of 9,000 tons and another of 3,000 tons—were sunk without German loss.

Meanwhile, in the heaviest raid upon London for 10 nights, hostile planes made a constant procession over the city, dropping explosives and fire bombs.

The surrounding counties were under assault as well. There were many casualties.

Other raiders were reported over Liverpool, a Welsh town, two towns in the southwest and one on the coast. A bomb from a single plane killed one man in an east Anglia town and injured three.

Here in London, curious blue-white beams starred the sky, paralleling the ground and with no visible connection with it, suggesting the employment of what the Daily Mail described only yesterday as a new "mystery weapon" for defense.

Roof-top machinegunners fired intermittently at parachute flares which fell in brilliant pairs and gave to the skyline the appearance of a sinister midway.

Many of the Nazi incendiaries were put out almost at the instant they fell, but fires sprang up nevertheless among rows of houses.

Don't envy anyone who picked up a splendid used car, do as HE did—find one exactly like it in the Want Ads of The Constitution.

James Aldridge Is Wounded While on Greek Battle Front

Nazi Fleet May Try To Join Italians in the Mediterranean

Axis Must Get Control of Sea To Win War, Stirling Writes; Both Nations Appear To Be Running Short of Oil.

By REAR ADMIRAL YATES STIRLING JR.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(UP)—The announcement in London that British and German warships clashed early this morning in the English Channel lends plausibility to speculation which has been going on for some days in naval circles—that a considerable part of the German fleet might attempt a dash to the Mediterranean in an effort to join the Italian fleet there.

The Axis must achieve control of the Mediterranean if it is to win the war and that such control cannot be achieved by the Italians alone now seems certain.

Meantime, there are increasing indications that both Italy and Germany are running short of oil and need to move quickly.

That the German navy could get into the Mediterranean is quite possible for it already has carried out actions during the Norwegian campaign, which offered comparable difficulties.

Germany controls the entire European coast line as far as Spain. The danger point, of course, would be Gibraltar straits and the section of the Mediterranean between Gibraltar and the Island of Sardinia.

The German navy in the Baltic consists of two 33,000-ton battleships, two 26,500-ton battle cruisers, two pocket battleships, two aircraft carriers, two heavy eight-inch gun cruisers, five light cruisers, together with destroyers and whatever secret ships may have been built recently.

Most of the German ships are fast, able to make 30 knots or more. Britain has 19 battleships and battle cruisers, mostly divided between home waters and the Mediterranean. The only ones that can overtake the German ships are five of the King George class and the Hood, the Repulse and the Renown.

To be on the safe side, the British intercepting fleet would have to contain at least six ships. The German fleet's getaway down the channel would be timed accurately. Submarine traps would be set for British intercepting forces. The German air effort would be great. The British would have only their aircraft carriers to count upon, unless the interception took place near the channel.

Correspondent Is Bombed by Italian Planes

Artillery Supreme in Mountains, He Writes of Fighting.

By JAMES ALDRIDGE.

FOR NORTH AMERICAN NEWSPAPER ALLIANCE.

WITH THE GREEK FORCES ON THE ALBANIAN BORDER, Nov. 29.—On the mountain where I am writing this dispatch I am seeing for the third day a continuous burst of Greek shells on a hill just behind me where the Italians are holding out.

The battle is being fought in an area below me where two Italian regiments are making a last desperate stand. They are caught in an elbow stretching into Albania. I passed a wounded Greek soldier being attended to. He was yelling with pain. This war is being fought by men, mules and artillery, and artillery is supreme.

Beyond the hill I went on for a stretch of two kilometers, crawling at times, and up another hill to within sight of the Italian troops. Then I crept forward slowly on my stomach. I could hear the Italians talking.

The Greeks opened fire with light machineguns and surprised the Italians, who were looking the other way. They ran for cover and left their machineguns unattended. I looked on the scene as though I were looking at a movie screen.

The Greeks moved forward with bayonets fixed to their rifles. The Italian batteries evidently heard of the action and opened fire on the hill on which I was lying.

Italian machineguns opened fire on the Greek troops and the spent bullets hit the earth around me as I retreated down the hill. I had to cross a river under rifle fire. Bullets plunked into the water on each side of me. I then ran up another hill for safety, but almost immediately Italian bombing planes came over and bombed it.

I was the only person on the hill, so I could hardly have made much of a target, but one small piece of shrapnel pierced my right arm. The Greeks are going about the whole thing in a businesslike way and already are using hundreds of Italian light and heavy trucks.

MUSIC DISTRIBUTION BEGINS TODAY AT 9 A.M.!

Valuable Phonograph Records of Symphonies and Operas To Be Distributed
At Low Cost Under Auspices of Atlanta Committee for Music Appreciation

The first phonograph records to be distributed in Atlanta under the Music Appreciation Distribution of the National Committee for Music Appreciation will be released Saturday morning at 9 A. M.

Franz Schubert's Symphony No. 8 in B Minor, the widely known and beloved "Unfinished," together with the opera Carmen, will comprise the first groups of records to be released.

On Saturday of each week during the next twelve weeks a symphony and an opera will be released. All of the symphonies are complete and were recorded by some of the world's greatest orchestras and conductors. The operas, comprising 12 of the world's favorites, were made by world-famous operatic artists and conductors during May and June of 1940 especially for this distribution and represent magnificent condensations designed to retain the arias, solos, duets and beautiful choral numbers that have endeared these operas to the public.

Either a symphony or an opera may be obtained for the small payment of one dollar and sixty-nine cents. To obtain the records, the applicant merely signs a statement that the records are being used for personal use, education and entertainment and not for the purpose of resale or profit. The small price at which the public secures these valuable records under this movement is little short of amazing to music lovers. For instance, the complete Beethoven's Fifth Symphony is turned over to the public for a payment of one dollar and sixty-nine cents. This Beethoven Symphony, recorded by the same orchestra under the direction of the same conductor and with the names of the orchestra and conductor on the records would cost four dollars and fifty cents.

Distribution of the records will be made from Distribution Headquarters which have been established at 104 Forsyth Street, N. W.

Schubert's "UNFINISHED" Symphony and CARMEN Are First Groups of Records to Reach the Public

The story behind this mighty mass movement in behalf of great music is one of the most inspiring in the history of America's cultural development. It is a gigantic record of co-operation and public-spiritedness, and its theme is co-operation—whole-hearted co-operation to bring good music to every man, woman and child in the United States.

The great newspapers of the country, first of which was The Washington Star, started this movement. Then the other great dailies from coast to coast gave it the benefit of their editorial support. The Chicago Daily News—The St. Louis Post Dispatch—The Akron Beacon Journal—The Los Angeles Times—these are only a few of the newspapers which have either sponsored the distribution locally or have given it unstinted editorial support.

America's musical world has taken an intense interest in the movement. Many of the greatest orchestras and conductors in the world, and world-famous operatic artists evidenced their public-spirited attitude toward the movement by waiving all royalties, receiving only a single recording fee. The manufacturers co-operated by cutting every item of expenses and profit to what they considered their lowest practical charges. The result is that valuable recordings of the world's great musical masterpieces are now being distributed to the public for a payment so small as to be almost incredible.

Read below instructions on where, when and how to obtain the records.

WHERE, WHEN AND HOW TO GET YOUR RECORDS

1. Come or send to Distribution Headquarters, 104 Forsyth Street, N. W. Hours of Distribution are 9 A. M. to 6 P. M., each day except Sunday.

2. Each week, on Saturday, a Symphony and an Opera will be released. For instance, on Saturday, November 30th, Schubert's Symphony No. 8 in B Minor and the Opera Carmen, become available to the public. On Saturday, December 7th, Beethoven's Symphony No. 5 in C Minor, and the Opera Faust are released. And so on, each week for twelve weeks, until all twelve symphonies and twelve operas have been made available to the public.

3. You receive each symphony and each opera which consist of either three or four double-faced records, 6 or 8 sides, for a payment of one dollar and sixty-nine cents for each symphony or each opera, and symphonies which contain five double-faced, 12-inch records, 10 sides, require a payment of only an additional forty-nine cents. In the case of Cesar Franck's D Minor Symphony, and Tristan and Isolde, these works have been divided into two three-record groups, and the cost of each group is the same as any other three-record unit.

4. The records are distributed to the public with the understanding that they are being obtained for personal use, entertainment and education and not for purpose of resale at a higher price, and you are asked to sign a statement to that effect when you get your records. A quantity of deluxe records, known as Philharmonic Transcriptions, and enclosed in record albums designed individually for each work, is available at a slightly higher price. 5. An electric record-player attachment is available for those who require a means of playing records, at a cost of four dollars and seventy-five cents. It can be attached to the average radio and plays records through the loudspeaker. It operates on AC current. For those who want a more elaborate record-player, a symphonic de luxe model, enclosed in a walnut case, is available at a higher price.

6. If you wish delivery of your operas and symphonies by mail, add 25 cents for shipping charges. Add 50 cents for shipping charges if you wish your record-player shipped to you. Every effort will be made to supply as many operas and symphonies as are required. Mail orders will be filled in order of receipt.

WELL KNOWN BUILDING—It was the Piedmont Driving Club, folks, a segment of which was published in yesterday's paper in The Constitution's "Identify It" contest. Transfer Marks Step Toward Completion of System.

Another step toward realization of a DeKalb county waterworks system was taken yesterday afternoon when $900,000 worth of self-liquidating four percent bonds were transferred by County Commissioner Scott Candler to the Equitable Security Corporation of Nashville, Tenn.

The exchange took place in the First National Bank of Decatur, where Candler completed signing the bonds that were bought by the firm for $106. Representing the county were J. A. McCarty, county attorney, and Sumner Kelly, of Atlanta, Decatur, which will share in the system, was represented by Hugh Burgess.

The corporation was represented by John J. Pershing, nephew of the World War general, and a New York bond attorney, Barlow Henderson, of Nashville, and Grady Black, Georgia representative for the company. Candler disclosed that contracts amounting to $400,000 had already been let for materials and work on the huge system will begin next week. It will serve the entire western half of the county.

Women Voters Urge Revision In Registration

Today's Methods, Adopted in 1894, Need Change, They Say.

Arguments for a model and permanent registration system for Georgia was advanced yesterday by the Atlanta League of Women Voters in its campaign to alter provisions enacted in 1894.

Three primary reasons for the change were cited: "1. Cumbersome and inconvenient registration system are deterrents to voting. At this critical time, the greatest emphasis should be placed on this item."

"2. A haphazard registration system discourages the independent voter, but is a positive asset to a strong political machine, which sees to it that its controlled voters are always registered, while the independent voter neglects or forgets to register and loses his vote."

"3. Well planned and systematized methods of keeping those records, with adequate equipment, will reduce the cost."

Discussing the present situation a League statement pointed out: "Until 1935 Atlanta required annual registration, at the city hall, for the city electorate. When the charter was amended to provide for permanent registration, and keeping these lists was delegated to the Fulton and DeKalb county registration authorities."

"Under our present system these registration officials are carrying out the letter of the law. They are going much farther than the law demands in their efforts to meet the present-day problems. They need the assistance of some modern-day legislation which would provide them with up-to-date methods."

Electric Production Shows 5.4 Per Cent Rise

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(P)—The average daily production of electric energy for public use totaled 413,340,000 kilowatt hours, an all-time high, during October, the Federal Power Commission reported today.

This was 5.4 per cent higher than in September, and 9.8 per cent above October, 1939.

Piedmont Driving Club Identified by Mrs. Lola Clement.

Photo Contest Winner Was Born on Site

It was easy! Mrs. Lola Walker Clement, pioneer Atlantan, yesterday readily identified the segment of the building shown in The Constitution's "Identify It" Contest as the Piedmont Driving Club and thus won herself a dollar.

What made her description so interesting—appealing enough to win her the prize—was the information in her letter that she was born there.

In her letter, Mrs. Clement, who lives at 281 Fifteenth street, N. E., said the Piedmont Driving Club was built in 1868 by her father, B. F. Walker, who occupied the home until 1887. It was then sold to the Gentleman's Driving Club, later the Piedmont Driving Club.

Mrs. Clement also disclosed she was born at the old Walker home July 21, 1875, the youngest of eight children of B. F. Walker.

For this bit of Atlanta history, and, of course, proper identification of the building—Mrs. Clement's letter was adjudged the best of the scores received.

Publication of the Driving Club photograph brought to a close the "Identify It" contest. The Constitution wishes to thank its readers for their interest and participation.

German, Italian Prisoners at Odds

AN EAST CANADIAN PORT, Nov. 29.—

Strife between German and Italian war prisoners held in Newfoundland has become so intense that they are being separated to avoid trouble, the Canadian press said today.

It said the Rome-Berlin Axis prisoners were "getting along badly" because of Nazi taunts over Greek successes against the Italian armies in Albania.

A new group of Italian prisoners were landed here today under military escort from St. John's, Newfoundland, bound for an internment camp in eastern Canada.

100 Newsmen Fail To Recognize Statue

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(P)—

More than 100 newspapermen failed in a guessing game at the White House press conference today.

Their eyes lit on a statue in the President's office of a man with hat tilted back and sleeves rolled up as if to engage in a good old-fashioned scrap. One wanted to know if it represented the "loyal opposition," despite its caption: "I'm a Dimocrat."

The President finally provided the answer amid laughter when he said it was presented to him by a Texan, that it was work of a Mexican artist in San Antonio, and that it was the artist's conception of a tight-lipped Irish Dimocrat.

ATLANTA, GA., NOVEMBER 30, 1940.

How They Do It

It has been, as revealed by the Dies committee, the long time policy of the Communist party to prepare to disrupt American industry in event this country became, directly or indirectly, involved in a war.

There can be no doubt that recent explosions and fires at various defense program plants, strikes in others, are, at least, some of them, the result of this planned Communist campaign.

In fomenting labor trouble and strikes the Communists are adroitly using the organized unions of American labor as cat-paws for their own ends. It is interesting to discover the method used, now familiar to federal law enforcement authorities.

Communists have managed, over a period of years, to infiltrate into many unions. Not even their fellow union members or the officials of those organizations have any suspicion, in most cases, that their fellow member, or members, belong to the Red party. These plotters are careful to build up a reputation as good Americans and good union members over a period of years.

However, in most cases, it is not possible for them to keep their secret affiliation with the Moscow Internationale from the knowledge of certain government investigators and authorities. Naturally, discovering that a Communist is working in a plant filling defense contracts, perhaps even in a post of critical importance, these authorities notify the plant management. Naturally, then, the management attempts to discharge that particular worker, to fire him, as a simple precaution against sabotage.

Then what happens? The discharged Communist, in his role of a good union member, protests his discharge to the union and, not knowing the man is a direct enemy of the country, that union demands his reinstatement. If the management refuses to re-employ the man, there is a dispute which probably culminates in a strike. The union believes all the time, innocently, that the man in question was discharged for "union activity," as he has claimed. And the upshot is that a strike has interfered with defense production, the company is forced, probably through the National Labor Relations Board, to re-employ the Communist and he is again in position to create new means of disruption and delay to the essential defense materials output.

It is a clever scheme and undoubtedly has worked in a number of instances.

The only possible means of coping with it is by those who know the truth about these individual Communists frankly giving their information, in confidence, to responsible union leaders. Then, when such a man is discharged, these leaders will know the true reason and not be hoodwinked by his specious claims of unfairness, or discharge for "union activity."

In New York, a lady confectioner evolves a white chocolate. It is perhaps for the best, though it will be harder to say how Junior spent his penny.

Further Delay?

Secretary of War Stimson charges that some of the larger aircraft builders are failing to co-operate as they should in the national defense program. He declares that they are filling orders for commercial airplanes ahead of those for the army and navy.

Secretary Stimson named, as one of the guilty companies, the Douglas Aircraft Corporation, but Donald W. Douglas, president of that company, issued a prompt denial, stating his company was building planes for commercial lines only with the approval of the National Defense Commission.

It is, as President Roosevelt pointed out in the same connection, obvious that the military program must come first. Unless all Americans put that program first of all their interests, from now on, the situation of this country is, indeed, parlous.

President Roosevelt explained that it is not the idea of the administration to cripple, or reduce, commercial air facilities, but it is felt these airlines should not be expanded until after every need of the aerial defenses of the nation has been met.

It is probable that the different views between Secretary Stimson and Mr. Douglas are the result of a misunderstanding. However, regardless of which one may have the greater truth behind his arguments, the situation should be rapidly straightened out to give the immediate right of way to all defense orders for aircraft and aircraft motors.

Otherwise it will be necessary to invoke government powers to enforce priorities in contracts. It is sincerely to be hoped that force, in this respect, will not be necessary and that the essential priorities can be secured by mutual agreement, rather than by mandate.

The time comes to ask what these air quiz programs are doing to the average American mental age: Are they building it up, or showing it up?

The Legs Have It

Far-sighted Americans must look with a feeling of indignant alarm upon the dire possibilities lurking in one little item of news which titillated the national fancy this week. Miss Certa Rozan, properly dismayed at her exclusion from the motion pictures, somewhat emphatically called attention to her plight by treating the Hollywood natives to an uninterrupted view of her major qualities as an actress as she trod before the studios richly adorned in large expanses of natural loveliness and tiny blobs of skillfully placed lace. By this bright method of picketing she resecured her position, her salary, and her clothing.

It comes as something of a shock to this callous country to discover that, of all people, a Hollywood producer would be so rattled at the sight of an unclad girl as to reverse his previous decision anent her qualities. This nation has come to a pretty pass, indeed, if a bare-legged woman in Hollywood becomes national news.

But further than that, there are grave dangers in Miss Rozan's innovation in striking technique. Suppose this thing, like the sit-down strikes of a few years ago, catches the labor fancy and becomes a common weapon of dissatisfied employees. Gad! the horror of it! Were all picketers so richly endowed with the charming allures of this loving world as Miss Rozan, how delightful life among the picketers would be, but sadly, we must confess, this is not the case.

Picture to yourself the Boilermakers' local out on strike, or the Coal Miners Union arguing with the boss. See for yourself John L. Lewis, arbitration gone, parading up and down the streets with his vast epidermis exposed to the breezes. What disruption of the commonwealth might result if 500 hod-carriers adopted the method of Miss Rozan to emphasize a point of contest!

For the Ladies' Garment Workers local, the Union of United Waitresses, or the Ladies' Equity, we say Bravo!

But for the knotty-caved, broad-beamed, anthropoid-chested citizens who earn their living the hard way, we emphatically say no! This thing may get out of all bounds; now is the time for action against it.

The fellow who invested a dollar in New York's fair is to receive 38.4 cents, which will leave him behind a black perspire with an 8 on it.

A worried New Jersey householder gets radio programs on the gas meter. Fancy, paying for the late campaign at 75 cents the thousand cubic feet.

We hope in time to have a clearer understanding of this Willie concept, a "loyal opposition." For the nonce it sounds like a wife.

Editorial Symposium

GOODWILL ACROSS THE BORDER

"The President's designation of Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace to attend the inauguration of General Avila Camacho on December 1 (Sunday) as President of Mexico is much more than a formal recognition of the new Mexican administration," says the NEW YORK TIMES, which calls the action "as warm a gesture of friendship as Mr. Roosevelt could make without going to Mexico City in person."

That expression of the TIMES is typical of the editorial opinions of the nation's newspapers. "There are differences and a few quarrels extant between the United States and Mexico. . . . The appearance of our vice president-elect at Mexico's most solemn governmental ceremony should do much to resolve even these," says the DETROIT FREE PRESS, and the FORT WORTH STAR-TELEGRAM believes "Developments soon will show that recognition of President-elect Camacho was an emergency measure demanded by the larger emergency of hemisphere defense and solidarity."

The WASHINGTON POST feels Mr. Wallace "will be a welcome visitor at Mexico City not only as the personal representative of President Roosevelt, who enjoys tremendous popularity throughout Latin America, but also on his own account." And the BOSTON TRANSCRIPT predicts the visit will "make for more friendly relations between the two countries," particularly in regard to the negotiations for the settlement of the dispute involving Mexico's expropriation of American-owned oil and other properties.

Pointing out that "For the United States Mexico is the most important of all the Latin American nations," the PHILADELPHIA BULLETIN sees Mr. Wallace's visit as "an assurance to Mexico that our government desires to promote a stable regime on our southern border and is ready to reciprocate in efforts to establish a firm basis for friendship." Meanwhile, the CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER believes "realism dictated President Roosevelt's action" and "we can well afford . . . to pass over some of the causes for dissension between the two countries, for the moment at least. The recognition of General Camacho is . . . an important move in our own defense. The presence of Henry A. Wallace as President Roosevelt's personal representative at the inauguration will be another."

THE CAPITAL PARADE

Nov. 29.—The settlement of the Vultee strike is extremely unlikely to write fins to the tale of labor trouble in the aircraft industry. At the Army, Navy and Defense Commission, high officials are quaking in their boots. For the Vultee settlement, reasonable as it seems to have been, merely extinguished in one place a fire which is almost certain to burst forth in another.

The primary difficulty arises from two facts. The aircraft industry, largely unorganized except where plant managements have recognized local unions, is now doing such rushing business that the workers everywhere are tempted to organize. And the most active organizational effort is being made by the CIO, and so far has been generally in the hands of the CIO's worst element.

The CIO executive committee voted a drive in the aircraft industry last June. Walter Smethurst, a former mine worker and a faithful henchman of John L. Lewis, was given official charge of the drive. Later, the extreme left-wing or Communist group in the United Automobile Workers, led by Wyndham Mortimer, associated themselves with Smethurst. There is doubt as to how they entered the picture. One story is that they were brought in by Lewis, who is now entirely surrounded by CIO permanent officials, strongly sympathetic to labor leadership of the Mortimer type. Another story is that J. L. Thomas, head of the automobile workers, let the Communist crowd take over the aircraft drive because he wanted to get them off his own neck in Detroit. At any rate, the CIO organizing drive seems to be now in the hands of men without the slightest objection to obstructing the defense program.

SABOTAGING DEFENSE

Between Smethurst and Mortimer, there are mixed motives. According to the confidential FBI report on which Attorney General Robert H. Jackson based his charge of Communist leadership in the Vultee strike, Mortimer has with him at least eight and probably ten men who are either party members or close fellow travelers. They are able and daring, as they proved when they were working in the automobile industry. Their Communist party line is sabotage of defense. Smethurst, on the other hand, has never been accused of Communist leanings, but as a Lewis henchman is committed to Lewis' policy. And Lewis hopes to use the defense program as a Sidney Hillman and other labor leaders friendly to the New Deal. Vultee strike. The main issue was the pay of apprentice workers, which seems to have been pretty low. Yet, when the strike leaders first accepted the proposed settlement of the wage issue, they intimated that the settlement must be regarded as temporary and that within a few months they would come back for more. Smethurst took the lead in opposing the arbitration clause finally inserted in the Vultee contract. Finally, in order to force a real settlement, it was necessary for Defense Commissioner Hillman to appeal to Thomas of the automobile workers. The arbitration clause, providing against future work-stoppages over wage disputes, was only accepted when Thomas went to the coast and participated in the negotiations on Hillman's plea.

Thus it is plain there is an initial conflict within the CIO between the responsible leaders and the men, like Lewis and the Communists, who seek to advance their various private or partisan interests at the expense of defense. Other conflicts are in prospect. There may be a row between the CIO and the AFL, since the AFL Machinists' Union is also conducting an organizing drive in the aircraft industry and has already been engaged in the Boeing and Lockheed plants. And there may well be several rows between the government and certain of the aircraft employers, some of whom appear bitterly opposed to unionization in any form.

MORE STRIKES EXPECTED

No one here seems to doubt that the Vultee strike was only the opening gun. Reuben Fleet, of Consolidated, and other west coast aircraft manufacturers warned the Army and Navy Departments, while the Vultee negotiations were in progress, that if Vultee was organized they would be next. In the labor division of the Defense Commission, this prophecy is considered accurate.

The question remains: What is going to be done? The most pressing problem, of course, is the role assigned to Communists and fellow travelers in the CIO organizing drive. The Jackson statement on the subject has been privately explained by the attorney general as intended to warn labor and its leaders to throw out the Communists or expect the government's opposition. Reluctant as the New Deal is to raise a finger against any effort by labor to organize industry, the highest New Deal officials are pretty determined to have no further truck with the Communists.

Getting rid of the Communists will be difficult. Nor will it solve the many other problems ahead. For these, so far, no solution has been proposed more drastic than the establishment of special mediation machinery for the aircraft industry, or the extension of the present machinery at the Labor Department.

SILHOUETTES

By RALPH T. JONES.

R. A. Hemphill Sunday School Class.

It gave me quite a thrill to read in The Constitution last Thursday that the R. A. Hemphill Sunday school class of the First Methodist church had adopted the first of the Opportunity families for 1941. For I have, for years, wondered why more of such groups do not see the glory and the worthiness of this Opportunity participation. There must be hundreds of classes in the Sunday schools of Atlanta and hundreds of other groups which could, quite easily, raise the requisite $20, $25, $30 or $40 a month needed to save some worthy little family from dissolution and despair.

I looked at the picture of the Hemphill class and counted on. According to my rough tabulation, there were 40 in the picture. The class has agreed to supply the $25 a month needed by Mrs. H., a deserted wife, and her two little sons.

I discovered that if each of the 40 members of the class gives 15 cents a week, the $25 will be raised—with a little over. And I expect there are more than 40 members of the class—it is rare to get every one of such a group as this into a picture. Which would make the individual giving even lighter.

When you think of what can be done, and will be done, with that money, it seems like a mighty easy thing to do and, at the same time, just about the best expenditure that anyone could make.

It will lift worry from a hard-driven mother, it will give a decent chance in early life to two little boys who, by every standard, deserve that chance.

And the knowledge of what they are doing will make life, for every member of the Hemphill class, a whole lot happier.

It's worth 15 cents a week of anybody's money, don't you think?

Why Not Follow Suit?

Oh, of course, I know there are a myriad calls for money and the need for giving is an endless thing. But I don't know of any more profitable giving than to these Opportunity families. Between now and Christmas, Frank Drake will be telling you all about them. Read his daily stories.

There have been two types of groups I've always wanted to see get interested in the Opportunity families. One is the Sunday school classes of the city. That desire is gratified by the action of the Hemphill class. And I'm hoping this will give a hint to some others.

And I've always had an idea there are a number of afternoon bridge clubs that could easily take a family for a year.

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

(The views expressed here are Mr. Pegler's own.)

Partly At Fault.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—Some of our union leaders and some union publications have been saying that these dispatches reveal an anti-labor or anti-union bias. As a friend has pointed out, I am partly at fault because, in reporting and discussing facts, I have not paused at regular intervals to say that my revelations and remarks were not aimed at labor or unionism, as such.

But let's see. I am sure I take no unfair advantage of the truth in saying that I have proved my two principal contentions, namely, that the CIO has been badly infected with Communism in controlling positions and that the AFL is tolerant to a dangerous degree of racketeering and criminality.

More than a year ago, while covering the ham 'n' eggs election in California, I positively confirmed, from the highest authority on this subject in the state, my conviction that the California CIO was controlled by the Communists. A few days ago Robert Jackson, our attorney general, who has been accused of sympathizing with the Communists but never of Red-baiting, announced that the FBI had satisfied itself that the Vultee Aircraft strike had been caused and prolonged by Communist influence. And, notwithstanding the inclusion of Communism in the resolution of condemnation adopted by the CIO in Atlantic City, the fact remains that the John L. Lewis faction is principally composed of elements in which the Muscovite influence predominates, including the longshoremen, the transport workers and the Newspaper Guild. This fact was freely admitted, in fact, by the Vultee strike leaders in the last days of the presidential campaign by leaders and publications of the union movement sympathetic with the Roosevelt candidacy. And the President's own suggestion that the Communists were backing Wendell Willkie was based on the known fact that Lewis, who endorsed Willkie, had little following in the CIO other than the Communists.

Nothing But Dictatorship.

Lewis claims the fierce, personal loyalty of the mine workers, but that union is a Hitleresque dictatorship, politically and financially, which would explode into revolution against him if he suppressed rank and file had the slightest chance.

As to the problems of racketeering and criminality in the AFL, this body admitted the truth, grudgingly, in open session in New Orleans and then adopted a miserable resolution which amounted to nothing more than a confession that the leaders lack the manhood, the courage and the citizenship to kick out of powerful official positions vermin who have lived on the earnings of prostitutes. That is the truth, as anyone who can read simple English may verify from the record. It is not a matter of interpretation but of fact, nor are these evil creatures few.

Even conceding that my contentions have been sustained, I still might be accused of anti-labor or anti-union bias. The question is why I presented and hammered away at the facts. Those who accuse me of bias think that there is only one possible answer—that I want to destroy the unions and expose labor again to the cruel rapacity of soulless corporations and heartless individual employers.

Another Answer.

To this I could, but will not, make the sanctimonious answer that my motive is to help labor clean house and thus to strengthen the unions. There is, however, another answer—my answer, that is, that I am a newspaper reporter or journalist and that the truth was news. The truth created arguments, and I answered the arguments. And if I have failed to extol certain unions which profess to be wholly free of Stalinism and reasonably honest, the reason is that they are no better than they should be. They should be loyal to the U. S. A. and absolutely honest.

Those are standard, minimum requirements. We do not hail citizens before the bar in this country to praise them for refraining from treason, persecution and theft. And when a man is accused of wrong, it is no defense to say, "my accuser hates me because I am a vegetarian," or, "thief though I am, say nothing about it lest you embarrass my honest friends."

Yet many union leaders and publications attempt to make such defense to plain disclosures concerning unions.

Until about two years ago I was heartily but thoughtlessly and unintelligently in favor of all unions just because they were unions. Since then I have discovered that the American concept of unionism violates some rights of citizenship and property and permits traitorous or ignorant and crooked leaders to menace the safety of the country. I will go into that later.

An Act of Wisdom

Editor Constitution: The appointment of Senator Walter F. George, of Georgia, is an act of wisdom. The selection for the chairmanship of the Foreign Relations Committee, the most powerful and important of all committees functioning under the federal administration, of Senator George, a man of mature, honest, and unflinching judgment, is wise and universally acceptable. He is a man of culture—scrupulously honest, highest type of integrity—a man of his own convictions, emanating from his long and well-aided experience as a statesman of the first class.

ONE WORD MORE

By RALPH MCGILL

ON TO ATHENS

If the day dawns bright and sunny there will be considerable gasoline burned today and the extras will be called out to man a few special trains. This is because the football teams of Georgia and of Georgia Tech will play in Athens this afternoon. Some 25,000 persons will be there, blanketed and excited.

This is a bit unusual and points, I think, to something important. The teams are composed of nice boys but each team has been soundly defeated not once but with some frequency. They are not great teams. A cool appraiser, emotionless, would say that they are, at best, just fair football teams.

Yet 25,000 persons will pay an average of $2 each to see them play. There is a reason for all this and the reason is that here is a natural rivalry. Therefore, it is interesting even though the teams have been soundly thumped by various foes. The game matters to many thousands of persons because they have a definite emotion about the game. It doesn't matter the teams have been defeated. The game today is the important one. It is not just a game.

This is a rivalry which has been going on for almost half a century. It is a rivalry which has its traditions and stories. Men with paunches who puff getting to their seats in the stadium will recall when they, too, were clean of limb and lean of body. They were out there once in the same game, Tech against Georgia. They still can remember how canvas sounds as it rasps against canvas. They still can hear the heavy breathing as the linemen surge and strain. The game means something to them.

Young men, just a year or so out of college, will be watching a game in which they once played. They will follow the plays, knowing just about what each play will be.

And then there will be the great army of football fans, loud and shrieking, who thrill to the game because of its tradition and its rivalry.

WHEN THE GAME WAS YOUNG

The first such game was played in 1893. It was just played such games as were interesting because of a rivalry. There were two or three with talent and the others had no talent but courage and loyalty for the school. It was the school that counted.

The big stadiums, the big money, have done something to football. If it were not for the occasional game with a real rivalry; if it were not for the games with a tradition, football would be rather worthless. It may be that the weakness of football today is that it has grown away from rivalries and become a tremendous business.

I do not mean to get involved in any attack on football, which says that it has grown commercial and is overemphasized. I would not be concerned about overemphasis or with the big gates if the game itself had not changed. It no longer is possible to "go out for the team." The football teams are made up of carefully selected squads assembled before school opens. The identity of the men who will constitute the first and second teams is known before the season begins. Only rarely is this lineup upset.

I am sure the game of 1893 was every bit as interesting and as thrilling to the spectators as will be the one of today. And I equally am sure football was a part of the school and the players a part of the student life as they are now at only a few schools.

The Tech-Georgia game is a big game when played by teams which often have been defeated. It cannot be argued 25,000 persons are going to the game because they believe they will see the greatest players in the game or even the better players. They are going because the game means something.

The average schedule today contains only two or three such games. Now and then I wonder if the others are worth playing.

SOMETHING IS HAPPENING

Football is such a very swell game that it is worth fighting for. Something is happening to it. One may see it in the east. Professional football is drawing more consistently large crowds than is college football. The pro games are beginning to excite the old rivalries which baseball used to have between towns. It already is regarded, by the public, as superior to the college game because it contains more stars and more of the good players. There is not a really incompetent player in the major pro ranks.

College football, because it had to pay for stadiums, got in the habit of playing meaningless games. They had no real rivalry. They were just games.

As such they are not nearly so good as a game between the Green Bay Packers and the Chicago Bears. Nor do they have as much meaning.

It will be but a few years before the pro game moves on south. It will attract a following. And because it will have the graduates of the college teams it will present better football if football is all one is looking for.

The game today at Athens is something more than a football game. It is attractive not because it is almost a game which has been scheduled every year for almost a half century. It is attractive because it means something. It would draw the big crowd if the pros were playing next door.

Tech and Georgia perhaps do better at sticking to real rivalries than other schools in the south. I am not talking about them in particular but about college football in general. Something is happening to it. And what is happening seems very plain to see.

Or do I just have a headache and feel badly?

Another Letter From a Bald-Headed Dad To His Red-Headed Daughter

By ROBERT QUILLEN.

My Dear Louise:

You may as well face the truth. You won't inherit a fortune, and you are too romantic and too honest to marry for money, and you lack the natural equipment to become a movie star, so you must learn the art of enjoying life with a flat purse or spend your days in baleful discontent.

As a matter of fact, money is important only when you haven't got it, and even then it has no importance in itself but only because of the things you can get in exchange for it.

All people covet money for the same purpose. One would exchange it for luxury, another for power, another for security, and yet another for public approval; but the ultimate hope and purpose of all is to exchange it for happiness.

We desire money for different reasons because different things are required to make us happy, and none would covet money at all except for the belief, ageless and universal, that it will purchase happiness.

Therefore, since happiness and not money is the real goal, the smart plan for one who has no money is to find a short cut and arrive at happiness without any previous bartering. If you desire a hat, and the owner will give it to you in exchange for a day's work, isn't that as easy and satisfactory as working elsewhere the same number of hours to earn the money necessary to buy the hat?

But, you will ask, how shall I go about this poor-folks job of acquiring happiness?

Fortunately the process is quite simple—so simple that only simple people are naturally smart enough to use it instinctively. It is a job of homework, for the source of happiness, like the Kingdom of Heaven, is within you.

You can't change your nature, or your degree of native intelligence, but you can control your moods and your mental attitude. Merely by resolving to do it, you can look on the bright side instead of the dreary one; tolerantly accept people as they are instead of being superciliously critical; sensibly take life as it comes instead of growling because things aren't different; be friendly instead of stand-offish, and kind instead of hateful; act like a good sport instead of crabbing; be grateful for what you have instead of envying others; and try to make others happy in the certain assurance that you will be rewarded ten-fold.

It's an old-fashioned process, but it still works. And once you get the habit, it will bring you more actual happiness than you can buy with a million dollars.

Love, DAD.

Muses on the Old Cabinet Makers and Their Handicraft

Mrs. G. L. Moore, who does a column for the Elberton Star, writes that a local cabinet maker, Mal Smith, has built for her a desk of Georgia pine. And it is a fine piece of craftsmanship and she is proud of it.

She should be—and so should Mr. Smith.

I had no idea that the art of cabinet making—by hand—still survived. The factories can turn out desks and tables and chairs so much faster and cheaper—and quite satisfactorily.

There are few antiques at our house and sometimes I'm glad. Especially about things to sit on. Because most of the antique chairs I've seen are something to admire—and avoid. Tables and "sear" chairs, all right. But the Spartan folk if they sat on those chairs. But few of them had time to sit down, anyway. And fifteen minutes on a 1740 easy chair would remind one it was bedtime.

But I have run across some specimens of cabinet work of the olden days that stirred my admiration. Chests of drawers of oak and mahogany and our southern pine, put together with wooden pegs, or "dowels" and built to last forever and a day. Not merely until the mode changed.

I've often thought it must be grand to "work with one's hands" and design and build a piece of fine furniture. Why, it's almost as fine as a painting or a bit of good sculpture.

But whenever I've tried to "make something" I've found I had two left hands and an uncertain touch and lack of patience. I might as well have attempted to paint a landscape or play a violin. I did build a fairly good dog house, but my dog has no appreciation of art. He sleeps under the house.

I have a few friends who practice cabinet making. But not commercially. They are amateurs, in the true sense of the word. Folk who do things because they love to do them. Men who have well equipped workshops in basements or attics. And they get a big kick out of it—just as an amateur photographer gains joy and happiness from taking pictures and developing them and printing them. And bestowing them upon his friends.

I'm not so old-fashioned as not to realize this era we're living in is better than the era which went before. If Mary and Johnny, just wedded, had to employ a skilled cabinet maker to build their furniture, they'd have to sleep on a pallet until Johnny got a raise. Now they can fix up the apartment for so much a week. And not so much at that.

But sometimes I do think it a pity that the old-fashioned art of building beautiful and substantial things "by hand" has disappeared.

Harvest time is over and holiday shopping has begun, which leads Henry T. McIntosh, of the Albany Herald, to pay tribute to Nelson Tift.

Why? Because, more than a hundred years ago, Mr. Tift decided to lay out a town to be called Albany. There was plenty of room on the west side of the Flint so he saw no reason to crowd things. He laid out a town with wide streets and plenty of them. So there's room for everybody, even a hundred years afterward, when Albany is probably a bigger town than Mr. Tift envisioned.

Quitman is a nother town with wide streets and parks down their centers. They didn't have to cut down the fine trees there to make room for modern traffic. Too bad Atlanta wasn't planned. But like Topsy, in "Uncle Tom's Cabin," she wasn't born. She just grew.

Deer of the forest and afterward crows of the pioneers "laid out" Atlanta streets, following the ridges or the little valleys, picking the easiest routes. Animals have shown the way over mountains to many an engineer seeking a pass for his railroad.

Atlanta plumb outgrew herself, leaving us narrow streets and acute angles and a general mess. But I'd rather live in a town which has outgrown its breeding than in one beautifully designed on a drawing board with everything to charm except population and business. There are thousands like that.

I can't get all het up about the phrase "Our Southland." Little bit saccharine! Little too sweet and sentimental.

Born and bred and raised up in Tennessee and Georgia I think I can talk about homefolks, because it's all in the family.

I've been around the Middle East and the West and the Middle West. And I read the papers from those benighted regions.

We have a darn nice country down here in "our Southland." And nice people. But, taking us, by and large, which is an expression which sounds good but doesn't parse, we are just about as good and nice and hospitable and virtuous as the inhabitants of Maine or New Jersey or Kansas or Colorado. Just folks!

Let's just refer to it as the South, if the region bobs up in the news. But why "our Southland?"

Sooner we get down to earth and become a part of these United States of America and forget Scarlett O'Hara and William Tecumseh Sherman the sooner we'll get going places.

Canada To Buy 144 U. S.-Built Combat Planes

Aircraft Originally Were Ordered by Swedish Government.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(UP) Canada has arranged to acquire 144 American-made combat planes originally ordered by the Swedish government, the United Press learned tonight.

Sweden had ordered the planes from the Vultee Aircraft Corporation, but the United States subsequently refused to grant an export license—ostensibly on grounds that the craft might fall into German hands.

The American government, however, was said to have had no part in arrangements for Canadian acquisition other than to issue export licenses.

A spokesman at the Swedish embassy said he "knew nothing about the arrangements."

Glover's Aide Denies She Is Letter's Writer

in its proper place, and that the style employed in the letter was not hers.

Cross-examination by Paul Carpenter, and his production of another copy of the same letter closer to the Brannon stenographic style failed to shake the witness.

"Isn't it true that there have been more copies made of this letter than any other letter in the Highway Department?" Camp smiled when he asked the question.

"Yes, sir," the witness answered.

Breaking into a discussion of the confusion prevalent in the department last December and the possibility that the letter may have been misfiled, Judge E. Marvin Underwood asked:

Included in Deed.
"Do you remember writing a letter of that character?"

"No, sir," Glover's ex-secretary answered.

The letter was first mentioned when earlier testimony developed that a copy of it was somehow included in an unsuccessful attempt to deed his houses over to the Highway Department. The deeds were drawn up by Judge Robert Carpenter, of the civil court of Fulton county, before Glover was indicted but after postal inspectors had begun their investigation of his activities.

The highway board refused the deeds and wrote Glover that in their opinion there had been no fraud.

Taken From File.
Watson, testimony developed, did not come for the letter until last week when he appeared with Postal Inspector Ellis and removed the copy from the file after a discussion of its contents came up in court.

Watson, Glover said before Miss Brannon was called to the stand, was looking for the inventory on the Dade county case, and he found it for him. He identified the letter as one he showed his stenographer, telling her that Watson was to call for it.

"Miss Brannon never wrote that letter," Camp flatly stated.

Under cross-examination, Glover's replies were long and involved, in marked contrast to the ease and clarity with which he answered his attorney's questionings.

Judge Comments.
Carpenter's objection that Camp was putting answers in the witness' mouth and that Glover should form his own answers brought the reply from Judge Underwood that:

"I, too, think the witness should be the one to answer, but he does not seem so inclined."

The judge's statement brought another objection from Carpenter. The judge later warned Glover that he should answer the question first and explain his answer later.

"Still Sick."
"Pardon me for being so nervous," Glover apologized. "I'm not comfortable. I'm still sick. But I'm going to stick right here and give you the best I got."

The morning's testimony went over the familiar story of the three houses Glover built in Dade, Dawson and Miller counties for use of camp wardens. Defense insisted that they were constructed in accordance with the rule, plan, practice and custom of the highway board; the government insisted they weren't.

IN FAVOR OF BLUEBIRDS.

Editor Constitution: The article appearing in last Thursday's Constitution about substituting the bluebird for the brown thrasher as Georgia state bird, is bringing in splendid results, in fact it is gaining state-wide interest. I began receiving votes through the mail the next morning, and they continue to pour in from all sections of Georgia.

People are showing more interest and seemed to have developed a feeling for our bluebird, which has never been witnessed before, and are offering to render any assistance possible for their welfare and protection, and I am receiving some mighty encouraging letters regarding this move, and your article seemed to be rather touching and as a result, has enlightened the people on this subject, and they are taking the opportunity to cast their vote for their own favorite bird, and so far, the bluebird is far in the lead, in fact, a landslide—and still gaining.

The bluebird, so far as is known, is the only bird not accused of preying upon crops, garden and flower yards, and people are beginning to realize the value of this bird and willing to vote their own conviction, and believe me, their votes speak for themselves.

So you see we have something started and let's keep it going, for you advanced the idea of what could be done. Now, tell the people what is being done, for your article deserves credit for this statewide interest. So shoot 'em some more. Your friend, DISAGREES WITH OUR EDITORIAL.

Editor Constitution: I have always enjoyed your editorials because I felt that you were men of learning. As I glanced over one in the Tuesday, Nov. 26, paper, I feel that it is high time that I place a question mark by everything that you write. You do not of Iron Guard extremists, but the situation tonight had not eased.

To the contrary, according to border reports, Guardist legionnaires, drawing on their secret stores for weapons, were said to be trying to seize power at Turnu Severin, Craiova and Brasov, all in Transylvania, where heavy loss of life occurred in the Guard fight for possession of public buildings.

"Revenge" Feared.
At Brasov, Guardists were said to have occupied the post office and telephone building but were driven out by soldiers of the local garrison.

The funeral for Iron Guardist Codreanu and 13 associates who were killed two years ago (when they tried to escape prison guards taking them to Bucharest, according to the official account at the time) will start at 8 a. m. tomorrow in Bucharest.

Hailed as "martyrs" by Iron Guardists, their remains were taken out of the Jilava prison graveyard on Wednesday and 64 members of the old regime were killed in vengeance at Codreanu's grave, some reports said. According to others, 62 were shot in prison cells and two beheaded.

Dispatches reaching the border predicted that the funeral day might be seized as a day of "total revenge."

Guardists Indignant.
It is now reported that the execution squad which went to Bucharest's Jilava prison to remove the remains of the Iron Guard's "corps of the dispersed," credited with the assassination of Premier Armand Calinescu a year ago.

Reports that they had been arrested were contradicted by others that they marched into a church in the Rumanian capital last night and mourned at the graves of Codreanu and his 13 comrades.

One report even said members of the corps were indignant over reports that all 64 men at Jilava were beheaded. They said only two went under the axe, a Jewish former police agent and a Jewish pharmacist, whom they accused of selling acid which was poured into Codreanu's grave.

Anti-Jewish violence was reported at Galatz and Braila. Guardists were said to be in virtual control of the latter.

Troops Rushed Up.
Three Rumanian army divisions were reported rushed into Bucharest today to join German soldiers in their increasing watch. Germans were helping elsewhere in Rumania, and the chief of the Nazi high command, General Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel, was said to have messaged to Antonescu an offer of further "cooperation."

Antonescu was reported to have tried unsuccessfully to replace several of his Iron Guard cabinet ministers with "loyal" army generals.

Vice Premier Horia Sima, leader of the Guard, and other Guardists, however, balked this move. Sima was said to have agreed merely to replacement of Colonel Zavolani, Guardist prefect of Bucharest police, with another guardist, Radu Mironovici, on grounds that Zavolani permitted execution of several prisoners in his custody.

TVA's Kentucky Dam Labor Dispute Settled.
GILBERTSVILLE, Ky., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The first construction shutdown on the TVA's $95,000,000 Kentucky dam here attributed to a labor controversy was settled today after an estimated loss of salaries in wages for the 2,000 employees. The men go back to work Monday.

Tennessee Valley Authority officials were notified this morning the workers had accepted terms of an agreement reached by representatives of union employees and the TVA.

Green Predicts Six-Hour Day, 30-Hour Week

AFL Chief Expects Adjustment at End of Defense Program.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 29.—(AP) AFL President William Green today predicted that when adjustments are made at the end of the defense program American workers will go on a 30-hour week whether industrialists like it or not.

Green made the assertion to the American Federation of Labor, which ended its two-week convention after deciding to help strengthen hemisphere defense by promoting co-operation among the free trade union groups of the Americas.

The AFL, which first advocated the six-hour day, 30-hour week eight years ago, reaffirmed its endorsement of that working schedule, but made no recommendation that it be put into effect now.

Noting the need for speedy rearmament, the convention unanimously approved a committee report declaring "high productivity in this country makes the 40-hour week both possible and necessary."

You may do on foreign affairs as far as I know, but I know the moral slump of America. Your knowledge of the latter will not equal that of the primitive man. You are not in a position to criticize this bishop.

Good Morning

By Dr. Louie D. Newton.

Sunday's lesson, the ninth chapter of Luke, presents three vital lessons involving the exacting terms of Christian discipleship. First, abedience to the sovereign Christ; second, fellowship with the serving Christ. The golden text states the case dramatically and convincingly: "No man, having put his hand to the plow, and looking back, is fit for the Kingdom of God."

Space will not permit a discussion of the details of this long and important chapter. With the suggestion of the above emphasis upon obedience, loyalty, and fellowship to and with Christ, let us come now to one or two specific incidents in the chapter.

Some of the friends of Jesus came upon a man, presumably a Jew, casting out demons in the Name of Jesus, though this man was not a member of the immediate group of disciples. They complained to Jesus about this man's presumption. Jesus answered them: "Forbid him not; for he that is not against us is for us." Here is a fine lesson in obedience to the sovereign Christ who has no patience with intolerance. How the circle of goodness widens at the Master's word!

Again, see Jesus as He rebukes impatient discipleship. He was leaving Galilee for the last time.

His path lay in part through Samaria, inhabited by a people hated by the Jews. Jesus sent messengers ahead to ask for hospitality overnight in a Samaritan village. The request was denied. James and John wanted Jesus to authorize them to command fire from Heaven to come down and consume the village. "But He turned, and rebuked them, and said, Ye know not what manner of spirit ye are of. For the Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." One rejoices to remember that John later preached the gospel in many Samaritan towns and villages. See Acts 8:25. He learned from Jesus a great lesson that day a lesson we may well take to heart.

Note now the words of Jesus in reply to men who boldly declared that they would follow Him, not stopping to count the cost. There is suggested in the three cases before us insincerity of allegiance, insincerity of service. Jesus would have none of it. It was an exacting definition which Jesus there gave of true discipleship.

I have found great profit in studying again this ninth chapter of Luke. I commend it to the vast throng of people who will be studying this lesson Sunday. It is a lesson to help us each and all in these trying days through which the world is passing. If we can come to a fuller measure of obedience, loyalty and fellowship as disciples of the Lord Jesus Christ, we can the better serve our day and generation, by the will of God.

Student Finds Largest Star, 800 Times Diameter of Sun

PASADENA, Cal., Nov. 29.—(AP) While astronomers were busy on other problems, it remained for George H. Herbig, 20, a college sophomore, to determine that Ras Algethi is the largest star to be seen in the sky.

"It is 690,000,000 miles in diameter, or about 800 times the diameter of the sun," Herbig said today.

His finding has been accepted by the Astronomical Society of the Pacific. Previously Antares was regarded as the largest star, but Herbig computed it to be about 245,000,000 miles in diameter and the fourth largest.

"If Ras Algethi, brightest star in the Hercules constellation, were hollow, there would be more than enough room inside it to put the sun and the planets Mercury, Venus, Earth and Mars, all revolving on their present orbits," said Herbig.

Explaining his findings, he said: "I used the angular diameters of stars obtained with an interferometer at Mount Wilson by the late Dr. Francis G. Pease. The rest was just a problem in mathematics."

He found that Mira, with a diameter of 395,000,000 miles, is second largest star, and Betelgeuse, which seems, to vary in size from 260,000,000 to 360,000,000, is third.

Herbig, a native of Wheeling, W. Va., is majoring in astronomy at the University of California at Los Angeles.

TVA's Kentucky Dam Labor Dispute Settled
GILBERTSVILLE, Ky., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The first construction shutdown on the TVA's $95,000,000 Kentucky dam here attributed to a labor controversy was settled today after an estimated loss of salaries in wages for the 2,000 employees. The men go back to work Monday.

Tennessee Valley Authority officials were notified this morning the workers had accepted terms of an agreement reached by representatives of union employees and the TVA.

Georgia and Tech Are Standoffs in Annual Grid Classic Today

All in the Game

BY JACK TROY

Still a Toss-Up One thing this corner has never attempted to do is pick, in advance, a winner of the Tech and Georgia game. I can always tell you afterwards who won, or why they tied.

But never beforehand have I attempted to make a choice. And I never will.

I have seen too many "favorites" in the series go tumbling down like the gold and brown leaves of fall. It has happened in recent years that the team which was "supposed" to win either got shellacked handily or was held to a tie.

In spite of a strictly neutral attitude, however, this correspondent is being accused of taking an unfair stand.

Four Georgia men collaborate in the following letter, which explains itself—

"Dear Sir: With reference to your article in The Constitution on Thursday, November 28, we would like to comment on a few points.

"Undoubtedly your attitude is swayed by the fact that, no matter what the odds, Atlanta public opinion is always favorable to Tech—but let's be fair in this Tech-Georgia feud and give Georgia credit where credit is due. From your article we gather that the football posters are all wrong since Tech is on the short end this week.

"The subtleties of your article are very amusing. Even though Tech hasn't won a game on Sanford field, we don't think the grass will be any softer for the 'Bulldogs' than the 'Jackets'. It seems that Georgia has made a more impressive record in its schedule this year than Tech. After all it is a matter of opinion as to the comparative toughness of the two schedules. Since when has Ole Miss, Kentucky, Columbia, Auburn, Florida and Tulane become easy foes. Needless to say three of these have trounced Tech very thoroughly.

"Even an unbiased opinion of an Atlantian (if one can be found) would give Georgia the edge in the tilt Saturday.

"For further details read your Constitution Sunday morning.

"Sincerely yours,

"Four Georgia Men

"Frank Belyeu Jr.

"Billy Scott

"Bobby Scoggins

"Frank Wadsworth Jr."

The four gentlemen are entitled to consider Georgia the favorite. It's a free country.

Promising Game One thing I do know, the game today at Athens is going to be a humdinger. Each has everything to gain and nothing to lose.

They'll be reckless. They'll shoot the works.

It will be a better game because of the season's records than it would be if either or both of the teams had something important at stake.

All they really have at stake is a desire for victory. Both teams could use one.

It may be one of the most colorful games of the Tech and Georgia series.

No Tech or Georgia teams of the past could throw the football as the present representatives can.

And both can run, too.

So, as a game of football, it is going to be par excellent. Don't make any mistake about that.

Chips Down Vanderbilt could cause the state of Tennessee an awful headache today by upsetting highly favored Tennessee in football.

The Commodores played a whale of a game against Alabama, and they are capable, in this grand old rivalry, of playing inspired ball against the Volunteers.

But if I were asked to make a pick, I'd say Tennessee by several touchdowns—for this reason.

Tennessee is what might be called "tournament tough."

The boys know what it is like to play when the chips are down.

They had to beat Auburn last year to assure themselves of a bowl bid. They did it.

So they're "tournament tough." They are not so conscious of pressure anymore.

A Rose Bowl bid might be waiting at the end of the trail again for Tennessee. So watch those Vols roll today!

By all rights, either Tennessee or Boston College, if both come through, should be selected by Stanford, which faces tough California.

And really Tennessee should have the inside edge over B. C. for the reason that the Vols have a better reputation nationally.

Surprising W. F. Dykes mentioned it casually as we were conversing during the banquet for the championship North Fulton High football team. Mr. Dykes is principal.

"I taught Major Clark Howell at Boys' High," said Mr. Dykes.

I took a quick look at him, then.

"But," I replied, "that is, well, how old are you, anyway?"

Principal Dykes laughed and said:

"Old enough to know better."

It was a real privilege to be with Principal and Mrs. Dykes, who are two of the most loyal football supporters I've known.

They sit on the bench with the boys at their games and lend their utmost moral support.

Harmon Receives Ripe Raspberries

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The city council purchased a crate of raspberries for Michigan's football star Tom Harmon today "as a token of your three scoreless years against Minnesota."

The gift of Minnesota-grown raspberries was the council's answer to Harmon's broadcast statement that Michigan should have beaten Minnesota by three touchdowns this fall.

Aldermen Stanley Anderson and W. J. Meagher introduced a motion at today's council meeting suggesting purchase of the raspberries.

STETSON TARRED.

ORLANDO, Fla., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Slippery Sam Hardman, 150-pound wingback, scored three touchdowns here tonight to lead the Rollins Tars to an impressive 34-to-0 victory over the Stetson Hatters. The victory, sixth for the Tars within the ranks of the S. I. A. A., gives Rollins a strong claim on the conference crown.

Billy Conn Shades Savold in Garden

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(AP)—In a battle that started out as a walk and wound up with left hooks, Billy Conn tonight whipped Lee Savold in a 12-round slugging match at Madison Square Garden.

It was Conn's toughest fight to date, although Savold gave him a wide edge by his slow start. It wasn't until the third round that Lee really uncoiled his left and started pitching, and not until after the half-way mark that the two boys drew the cheers of the crowd by going at it hammer and tongs.

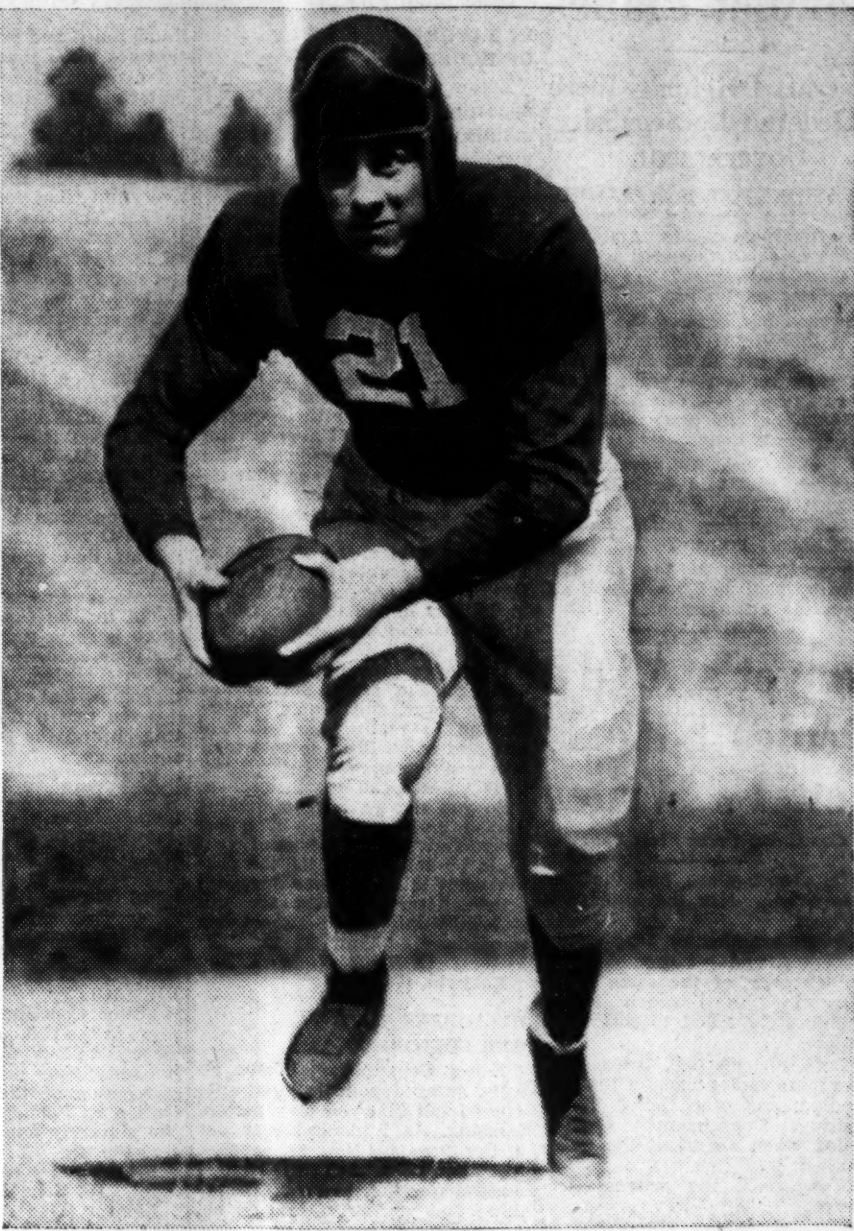

A crowd of 12,750 contributed to a gross gate of $31,170 to sit on the proceedings. The decision of Referee Arthur Donovan and both judges was unanimous for the light-heavyweight champion.

PENSACOLA WINS.

PENSACOLA, Fla., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Scoring in every period, the Pensacola Naval Air Station football team closed its 1940 season by defeating the Fort Benning, Ga., eleven, 47 to 0, today.

TRIPLE-THREATS—A spectacular running, passing and punting duel is promised this afternoon when Tech's Johnny Bosch, left, and Georgia's Frankie Sinkwich meet in Athens on Sanford Field. The spotlight will swing back and forth from one to the other as the ball changes hands during the contest. Georgia is given a slight edge in the annual battle between the state rivals.

Alabama and Maroons To Fight for Bowl Bid

Close Game Expected as Crimson Tide Tries to Hand Maroons First Defeat.

By THAD HOLT, Staff Writer.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., Nov. 29.—With a probable bowl bid for the winner, Alabama's Crimson Tide and Mississippi State's tough Maroons will shoot the works in their game here tomorrow.

A home-coming crowd of some 22,000 people is expected to watch the once-beaten Elephants of Frank Thomas try to hand the once-tied State eleven its first defeat of the season.

The chubby Tide leader, Frank Thomas, expects his team to prove those listless showings against Georgia Tech and Vanderbilt were not representative of his team's true strength.

Still, Mississippi State, a hard-hitting eleven with a mobile line and a string of backs who can hit like year-old horses, ruled a 6-5 favorite in betting circles here tonight, despite reports that Broadway odds had switched to 11-10 in favor of the Tide.

BOWL BID READY.

The winner is almost sure to wind up in one of the bowls, which are well stirred following the Texas Aggies' upset. A gentleman will walk up to the coach of the winning team here tomorrow and tender him a warm invitation to the Orange Bowl.

There is a good chance, however, that if Tennessee should be invited to the Rose Bowl, Alabama or Mississippi State will play in the Sugar Bowl. A most reliable source knocks that supposition in the head with the news that Major Bob Neyland definitely committed his Vols to the Sugar Bowl months ago.

Alabama's chances to win would seem to depend largely upon the condition of Jimmy Nelson's kicking foot. The brilliant Tide sparkplug couldn't kick or run against Vanderbilt. He proved his greatness by blossoming into a Dead-Eye-Dick passer. A swollen instep is the cause for all the alarm in the Alabama camp.

BATTLE FOR 2D PLACE.

The game will give the winner second place in the Southeastern conference.

Mississippi State, poised and confident following its crushing defeat of Ole Miss, will be hard to stop. Harvey Johnson skirts the ends and thunders off tackle like a run-away freight. He also has a running pass which is said to defy defense. Billy Jefferson, his understudy, is a touchdown threat every time he gets the ball, and Buddy Ewold, a great end, and Hunter Corbarn, powerful guard, pace the Maroon forwards.

Tulane Is Favored Over L. S. U. Tigers

BATON ROUGE, La., Nov. 29.—(AP)—The much-battered football teams of Louisiana State and Tulane came to the meeting of the ways here tomorrow, and regardless of what has gone before the success of the season will depend upon what happens then.

Thirty-five thousand fans are expected at the game, which is set for 2 p. m.

Most of the experts and bettors so foolishly as to try to predict the outcome of a Tulane-L. S. U. game have made the Green Wave a slight favorite, on the strength of advantages in weight, speed, experience and reserve strength.

Boys' Club Boxers Beat Y. M. C. A., 7-3

The Atlanta Boys' Club boxing team swamped the Y. M. C. A. team by the top-heavy score of 7 to 3 in a match at the "Y" Friday night. In the feature fight of the evening the "Y" team won with Billy Findley taking the decision over Lonnie Clark. Both boys showed plenty of ability and pluck.

Other results: Wallace Barthard, Boys' Club, won by technical knockout over Harold Bolden, "Y"; Ted Denson, Boys' Club, won by technical knockout in second round over Everett Mobley, "Y"; Thomas Landers, Boys' Club, won decision over Dan Denson, Boys' Club; Melvin Berner, Boys' Club, won decision over Bobby O'Quinn, "Y"; Paul Robinson, "Y", won on forfeit from Bill Mitchell, Boys' Club; Robert Hamlin, Boys' Club, won decision over Clyde Henin, "Y"; James McKee, Boys' Club, won on knockout over Grady Lambert, "Y"; Alvin Wilkie, knocked out Henry Wolfe, both from Y. M. C. A.

ALLEN KAYOEED.

TAMPA, Fla., Nov. 29.—(AP)—Tommy Gomez, 175, Tampa, knocked out Young Allen, 180, Macon, Ga., in the second round of a scheduled 16-round bout tonight. Gomez, who enlisted in the Florida National Guard since his last fight, had Allen down for a count of nine in the first round.

Richards First To Arrive for Baseball Meet

Pitchers, Third, Shortstop Listed as Main Cracker Needs.

By JACK TROY.

Paul Richards, Cracker skipper, has arrived in town from Waxahachie, Texas, in advance of the minor league meeting and plans a series of conferences with President Earl Mann.

Cracker needs are enumerated as:

(1)—Pitchers (and several of them).

(2)—One side of an infield (third and short).

(3)—Possibly one more outfielder.

As matters stand the Crackers have Willard Marshall, who tied for runs batted in honors in his first year of pro ball; Emil Mailho and Buddy Bates returning from last year's outfield. Thomassie, Waycross star, is a new addition.

Connie Ryan, star of Savannah, returns to take over second base. Lester Burge will be retained at first base, according to present plans.

Manager Richards, Dewey Williams and young Doc Smith comprise the catching staff at present. Sol Ferrara may be sent out for more seasoning.

One of the big needs is pitching. Some of the returning moundmen are Larry Miller, Luman Harris, Wayman Kerkiseck, Charley Burgess, Jinx Poindexter and Emile Lochbaum.

The Crackers have a fair amount of trading material. Then, too, of the many promising players they have called in, there may be two or three who can make the grade.

There's a lot of rebuilding to be done between now and March 1.

Richards heads the minor league arrivals and maybe there is something to the old saw about the early bird, etc.

Six Staff Writers To Cover Grid Games for Constitution

Speaking of football coverage . . . The Constitution will be represented at Sanford field by SPORTS EDITOR JACK TROY, JOHNNY BRADBERRY AND RALPH MCGILL.

The usual expert coverage of the game and all the sidelights of the annual rivalry will be presented.

It is not to be a one-sided Saturday by any means, however. The Constitution sports department staffs all the big games.

Tennessee is playing Vanderbilt with a bowl bid—possibly the Rose Bowl—hanging on the outcome. JOHN MARTIN, staff sports writer, will be in the press box at Nashville to report the doings in colorful fashion.

Alabama and Mississippi State are playing for a bowl bid at Tuscaloosa, Ala. THAD HOLT, staff sports writer, will report the happenings at the Alabama home-coming classic.

Last, but not least, Auburn and Florida are meeting for the first time in Columbus, Ga. The fine town now has two college games a year. Florida has beaten both Tech and Georgia. AL SHARP, staff sports writer, will give you the dope on this game.

Other games will be covered expertly by press service writers.

B. C. Eagles Risk Unbeaten Record

BOSTON, Nov. 29.—(AP)—The Boston College Eagles, one of the nation's four undefeated and untied major football teams, will be gambling with their chances for one of the more important bowl game invitations tomorrow when they engage the Holy Cross Crusaders, their traditional rivals, before a sell-out crowd of 40,000 at Fenway park.

Few experts admit, however, that Frank Leahy's powerful forces are taking much of a risk against the Crusaders, who are about to close their most unsuccessful campaign in many years.

Georgia will have eight sophomores in the starting lineup if Homer Passmore, whose defensive work has been excellent, opens at center.

It wouldn't surprise ticket sales manager Johnny Broadnax if the crowd for the game ran well over 25,000. General admission tickets will be placed on sale in the morning.

THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

NEAR THE END OF THE TRAIL.

The centerpiece on tomorrow's football table is a large Bowl which carries a Rose bloom, a Sugar plant, an Orange blossom and a Cotton boll.

It happens to be a centerpiece for which some 250,000 spectators will pay out over $600,000 a few weeks away, during the hang-over following New Year's Eve.

Most of the major bowl parties will be concerned with Saturday's results. A few of the leading parties of the first and second parts are Stanford, facing California; Tennessee, meeting Vanderbilt; Boston College, lined up against Holy Cross, Texas A. & M., another major bowl participant, ended her season on Thursday.

There is still another bowl party involving Alabama and Mississippi State at Tuscaloosa. Alabama has dropped only one game, to Tennessee. Mississippi State has suffered only one tie, against Auburn.

The strong Nebraska team is another bowl entry that has come to the end of the trail. And Fordham, with a single defeat, has N. Y. U. to beat before blossoming into some form of bowl bloom, Orange or Cotton.

So Saturday will be bowl-bowl day, money and more money, drawing more and more people than anyone else by a margin wider than the outposts of a Siberian frontier.

The Roundup.

Army-Navy at Philadelphia—Slightly over 100,000 spectators will pay out some $400,000 to see these two service teams play their hearts out. Army hasn't won a major game. Navy has been beaten by Pennsylvania and Notre Dame, with a Columbia draw. Who cares? It is Army and Navy, anything can happen. Navy is distinctly the better team. Both are green timber. Navy.

Stanford-California at Berkeley—Stanford has won eight straight games. California has been beaten four times. But California is an improving team, playing at home, against a shining target. Here is the Harvard-Yale game of the far west. Stanford should win with something to spare, but an upset wouldn't be shocking.

Boston College-Holy Cross at Boston—Boston College has one of the best teams of many years—big, fast, powerful and experienced. Holy Cross has been whipped four times. On copy paper, Holy Cross is not even in B. C.'s class. But again a traditional game can make a big difference. Holy Cross is far better than her record shows. The pick is still Boston College, at least three touchdowns better on form.

Tennessee-Vanderbilt at Nashville—Another one of those traditional puzzles. Tennessee has won nine straight. Vanderbilt has dropped five games, plus a tie. Tennessee on form is as far in front as Cornell was over Dartmouth, or Duke over North Carolina. The pick is Tennessee in a much closer game than the past performance chart can show. It almost hear the blocking and tackling this far away. And that's still football.

Alabama-Mississippi State at Tuscaloosa—One of the most rousing selections of the day. Back in September I was tipped to keep an eye on Mississippi State. Answer to date—eight victories and one tie. Only Tennessee has beaten Alabama. The winner is an like Alabama's offense.

Fordham-N. Y. U. at New York—Only a miracle can give N. Y. U. a chance. Fordham, with a lone defeat, has too much speed and experience. In fact, too many good football players.

Duke-Pittsburgh at Durham—A fine game between two good teams. Pitt battled Nebraska to the finish and beat Penn State. Duke fell before Tennessee and North Carolina. I like Duke.

Tulane-L. S. U. at Baton Rouge—Another one of those dogfights. Tulane has the call in a tough game.

Georgia-Georgia Tech at Athens—Here is the big snarl, depending largely on physical fitness. Georgia has the material—Florida Tech the smartness. Georgia whipped both. A nod to Georgia in a whole of a game. No quarter.

Oklahoma-Santa Clara at San Francisco—One of the best games of the day. The defeat to Santa Clara, with a lone defeat. Only an edge.

Southern Methodist-Texas Christian at Dallas—One of the top games of the Southwest. S. M. U. and Rice are strong contenders for the Cotton Bowl. They want a Texas team. Southern Methodist.

Oregon-Oregon State at Corvallis—The nod to Oregon State.

Southern California-U. C. L. A. at Los Angeles—A year ago these two teams played before 100,000 spectators for the Rose Bowl game. That was far away and long ago. Since that time they, together, have lost 11 games this fall. Southern California.

Washington-Washington State at Seattle—Washington all the way.

Duquesne-Carnegie Tech at Pittsburgh—Duquesne with a better team.

Rice-Baylor at Houston—Jess Neely of Rice has turned in a grand job. Rice.

Florida-Auburn at Gainesville—Florida has been moving with a rush and Auburn has been sagging a bit after a tough schedule. A good, hard game with Florida favored to keep winning.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 29. (AP)—

Henry A. Wallace, U. S. vice president-elect, presented his credentials as special ambassador today and with other envoys heard retiring President Lazaro Cardenas say every American country would "see to its own defense, ready if need be to go to the defense of all."

Wallace, visiting Mexico as a special envoy to the presidential inauguration of Manuel Avila Camacho, took no notice of last night's demonstrations before the United States embassy, and was not disgruntled by the actions of General Juan Andreu Almazan, who was defeated by Avila Camacho.

Rev. W. H. Boring Ends

Five-Year Pastorate

Sunday brings to a close the five-year ministry of the Rev. W. H. Boring at Wesley Memorial church, during which he has received into the church about 400 members. All departments of the church work well organized. Sunday congregations have been large throughout his pastorate, with four prayer meetings weekly, three of them being held in the church.

The Rev. Mr. Boring has been transferred to Bremen, Ga., and will leave Atlanta during the coming week. He will be glad to welcome members and friends of the church at the services Sunday.

Allen Couch are in Washington attempting to obtain early approval of a bond issue for $1,085,000 for improvements.

Report Shows Notable Increase in Units Over State.

Abit Nix, of Athens, was re-elected chairman of the executive committee of the state Y. M. C. A. council at a meeting held here yesterday, attended by business and religious leaders from over the state.

Others elected include Ely R. Callaway, LaGrange, first vice chairman; E. Clem. Powers, Atlanta, second vice chairman; J. N. McEachern, Atlanta, third vice chairman; Harilee Branch Jr., Atlanta, secretary; T. Guy Woolford, Atlanta, treasurer, and John W. Crenshaw, Atlanta, assistant treasurer.

Mr. Nix will complete his third year as chairman of the Y. M. C. A. state council in December, having succeeded Samuel C. Dobbs, who served as state chairman for many years and who continues as a member of the executive committee.

Reports made at the meeting indicated a notable increase in the number of Y. M. C. A. units now operating in Georgia, including more than 290 Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs in high schools. Plans for the appointment of an additional field secretary for the southeastern district, which includes Savannah, were discussed, following a recommendation of H. W. Rhorer, state Y. M. C. A. secretary. It was announced that the annual state Y. M. C. A. convention will be held in Atlanta next February 7, at which Dr. James L. Ellenwood, nationally famous author, lecturer and Y. M. C. A. worker, will be principal speaker.

Sales in the Sixth Federal Reserve district for the same period were down 7 per cent from the previous week and up 7 per cent over the same week a year ago.

Tax Collections Better This Year

Collection of 1940 Fulton county taxes is running ahead of last year, County Auditor James L. Respass told the county commissioners yesterday.

He said collections through Thursday totaled $67,306.36, as compared with $67,763.92 for the corresponding period in 1939.

However, he pointed out that collections of back taxes was considerably slower than last year. The corresponding figures are 1939, $66,844, and 1940, $17,303.

Camp Shelby Will Quarter 40,000 Troops

Building Program Is Rushed on Mississippi Cantonment.

On the rolling cutover pine land 10 miles south of Hattiesburg, Miss., the army is constructing quarters and facilities for more than 40,000 National Guardsmen, already arriving for a year's training at Camp Shelby.

Here is the way this phase of the defense program is affecting one of many cities in the United States:

When the government leased Camp Shelby and annexed 25,000 acres of adjoining land, a group of construction contracts were awarded in rapid succession.

The result was a "labor rush." Quarters for the thousands of enlisted men and officers, plus possible conscripts and volunteers, had to be built—and quickly.

The vast construction program at the camp is perhaps the biggest rush building job in Mississippi's history.

Ten thousand screened and floored tents are being built. It will require 294 mess halls to feed the enlisted men in the sprawling city of soldiers. Officers will require 24 dining halls.

Besides these, work has begun on a 2,000-bed hospital, a bakery, laundry, complete cold storage plant and two incinerators. Constructing quartermasters' specifications also include 18 smaller infirmaries in addition to the big hospital.

To discourage soldiers from wandering away for their play, Camp Shelby will have three tent theaters and three "service clubs." Besides, there will be 21 regimental recreation buildings for reading and letter-writing and other pastime pursuits.

For keeping America's modern motorized army in good mechanical order, Shelby will have 46 motor repair shops and three utility shops. And to fuel the tanks and armored cars there will be 46 gasoline stations and 37 warehouses.

For the men commanding the 40,000 troops, a total of 36 administration buildings and nine general officers' quarters are in the plans.

Mrs. Brookes Gives Luncheon For Debutantes and Brides

Mrs. William Walker Brookes chose the color range from palest pink to deep rose to adorn her luncheon table yesterday when she entertained in compliment to Miss Helen McDuffie and Miss Margaret Winship, debutantes; Mrs. Basil Stetson and Mrs. Gordon Jones, recent brides, and Miss Nancy Cooper, of Rome, a bride-elect.

The luncheon, which was held at Mrs. Brookes' home on Peachtree road, was one of the loveliest affairs featured on Friday's social calendar. The hostess was assisted in entertaining her guests by her cousin, Miss Julia Bowers, Mrs. Charles J. Haden, Mrs. Monica Harris Keenan and Mrs. Robert Beynes.

The luncheon table was covered with a handsome white cloth of Moravian satin damask, and the flowers used to carry out the chosen color motif were pink and rose azaleas, pink begonias, Briarcliff roses, and pale pink camellias. The blossoms were arranged in an antique white Dresden bowl, with border of cerulean blue and gold, for the center of the table. Four similar curved bowls filled with roses, camellias, and begonias, adorned the corners of the table, with two tall flower-filled urns flanking the centerpiece.

The place cards bore the hostess' monogram in gold, and marking the honor guests' places were bouquets of pink and rose camellias, except for the bride-elect, Miss Cooper, whose cover was designated by a bouquet of white camellias.

In the drawing room where Mrs. Brookes received her guests, yellow and white chrysanthemums and Easter lilies were combined to charming effect in the floral decorations. Pink and rose camellias growing in tall urns guarded the doorways. The table in the reception hall was graced with an attractive arrangement of roses, chrysanthemums and snapdragons in yellow, white and pink.

Miss Agnes Legg Weds Mr. Butterworth

Interest centers in the announcement made today of the marriage of Miss Agnes Legg and John Evans Butterworth which was solemnized on November 12. Mrs. Butterworth is well known among members of the building profession throughout the southeast, having represented the Plainville Brick Company in a sales capacity for several years. Mr. Butterworth is an employee of the Southern Bell Telephone Company.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William H. Reed, of the Sylvan Hills Baptist church, before a small group of friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Butterworth are residing at 5003 Wieuka road.

For Miss Elizabeth Kell

Misses Melrose and Willie Rue Black entertained recently at a miscellaneous shower at their home in Decatur in honor of Miss Elizabeth Kell, of Decatur, whose marriage to Lanford Wade will be an event of Sunday.

The Misses Black were assisted in entertaining by their mother, Mrs. D. F. Black. The highlight of the evening was a miniature wedding by candlelight.

Another recently interesting social affair was the party at which Miss Betty Mann entertained in honor of Miss Kell at her home on Lakeview drive in Decatur.

Surprise Party.

A surprise party was given recently at the parsonage in Hapeville by the Mary Pool Wesleyan Service Guild, of the Hapeville Methodist church, in honor of Rev. and Mrs. E. C. Wilson, who have been transferred to East Point. A beautiful silver bowl was presented by the guild to Rev. and Mrs. Wilson in appreciation of the fine work they have done during the past year.

Streamlining a Figure To Model Proportions Needs Some Action

By Ida Jean Kain.

Well, who'd have thought it! The public fancy is now turning up its nose at glamor! Its applause is reserved for "the real American girl"—who wears slacks with grace and evening gowns with sophistication, but who prefers outdoor sports to the night spots.

Our authority for this about-face on the part of the public is Harry Conover, who supplies models to the popular magazines and advertising agencies and whose business it is to know these things. He says flatly that "the lacquered look" that goes with glamor is not what it takes to sell the advertisers' products. The consumers favor the sun-kissed beauties.

It seems the modeling business is essentially a polishing school where a girl "learns to make the most of what she has." One of the first things she learns is that personality may account for as much as 65 per cent of her looks! And she meets so many people in the course of her work that she soon forgets to be shy and can be her own charming self.

Of course, she makes the most of her looks, too. And that means, primarily, that she must have a sparkling vitality and a figure that is as streamlined as a movie star's. Here is a set of measurements our exacting connoisseur considers ideal for a fashion model: Height, above five feet eight inches in high heels; weight, in the close neighborhood of 125 pounds; waist, 25 inches; bust, 35 inches, and hips the same as the bust!

Woman's Quiz

Q. Please state the Japanese rule for preparing vegetables.

A. They have a proverb which advises, "Don't cook a green vegetable, just frighten it."

Q. Please give me a recipe for buckwheat bread.

A. The Bureau of Home Economics offers this recipe:

1-2 cups sifted white flour
1-4 cups buckwheat flour
1-2 teaspoon soda
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-2 cup sugar
1-2 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon cloves and cinnamon mixed
2 eggs, beaten
1 cup milk
1-2 cup fat, melted
1 cup molasses

Sift the dry ingredients together 3 times. Combine the beaten eggs, milk and melted fat. Add this to the dry ingredients. Stir in the molasses last. Bake in shallow pans in a moderate oven for 30 to 40 minutes. If using sour milk instead of sweet, use 1 teaspoon of soda and only one teaspoon of baking powder.

Q. What kind of treatment should be given an African violet house plant?

A. A light location with indirect sunlight is recommended. Apply water thoroughly, directly to the soil. Remove faded flowers. A cool, shady place in the window during winter is essential.

Q. What are some of the characteristics of empire furniture?

A. It is heavy and ponderous. Because it was originally developed by aides to Napoleon, the letter N within wreaths is often used in its decoration.

Q. Are invitations written on visiting cards correct for informal dances, musicals, bridge parties and teas?

A. Yes.

Have you a household problem to solve? Write your question clearly, sign your name and address, inclose a 3-cent postage stamp and mail to The Woman's Editor of The Constitution, 1013 Thirteenth Street, Washington, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Imagine a job that requires such streamlined specifications. The average girl would have to do quite a lot of work to have a model figure—and, to give away a secret, so do most of the beginning models. "Practically every new girl has to take from one to two inches off the hips," Mr. Conover says. His advice is "to sit on the floor and roll violently from side to side—until it hurts." That's the daily routine these beauties find most effective for hip-slimming.

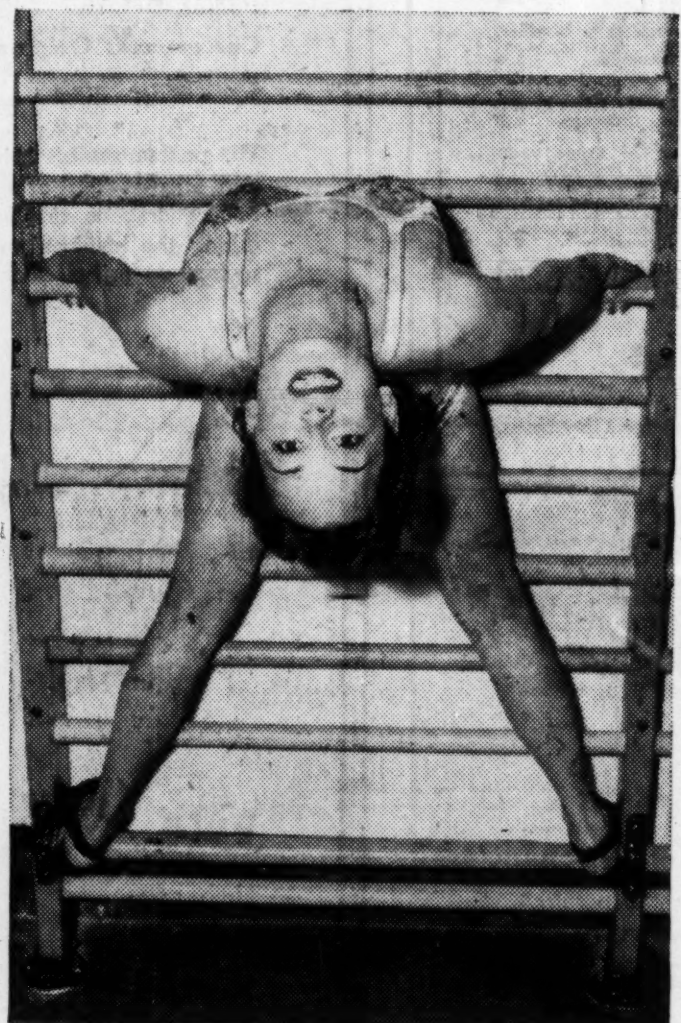

It's amazing how many of these girls hold records in sports. They love to ski, skate, swim, play tennis or badminton, or ride, so their favorite recreation affords plenty of outdoor exercise. It's a very practical idea to learn to play for your exercise—you're more likely to take it!

They don't "do the town" very often, Mr. Conover asserts—"it just gets them all tired out and when the photographer says 'now give us one of those big smiles' a girl may be able to open her mouth and show her teeth, but what he wants is a smile that begins in the eyes. She has to feel fresh for that! And another thing—the floodlights will show up lines the average woman might not even notice for a couple of years. A model can't afford to come to work tired out."

That ought to give you an insight into the beauty tactics of the girls who are setting the new styles in loveliness. There's nothing mysterious or expensive about their program—it's one any woman could adopt.

Pretty Lucia Carroll, Warner actress playing in "The Lady With Red Hair," works out all the little kinks on a bicycle that just won't go anywhere, but on which she gets good results in the streamlining field.

Here Lucia goes in for rather strenuous exercise and looks as if she liked it. However, this kind of exercise will certainly streamline and firm the figure.

Shirley Temple Is Off In School Averages, Now That She Reads

By Sheila Graham.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 28.—Deanna Durbin has promised her studio bosses that when and if she marries Vaughn Paul, it will not be a skip-and-run elopement. It's to be a real old-fashioned wedding, with a white satin gown, orange blossoms, and the rest of the trimmings. I wish you could see Deanna in the flesh these days. She gets prettier all the time. And as for her rating in pictures, I'll bet my best Sunday bonnet her name is high on the new best-at-the-box-office list.

Knowing what a bright girl Shirley Temple is, you would expect her to lead her class at the Westlake school. But nothing of the kind. Shirley is much nearer the lower end than the top. And here's why: Shirley is used to assimilating knowledge via the oral method. Her school teacher on the set read the lessons to her. Now Shirley has to read them herself—and this change has slowed her up.

Jimmy Stewart tells lies about his height and weight like some women we know prevaricate about their age. "I give a different answer every time," Jimmy tells me in that Boy Scout manner of his. "As far as I can remember now, I weigh 150 pounds, and I'm six foot two something tall." But that's only as far as he can remember. He probably weighs a little less—and is taller. . . . Talking about height, someone recently accosted Edward G. Robinson and said, "My, but you've suddenly got shorter!" Which should remind Eddie to wear his "lifts" in the future.

The Joan Fontaine-David Selznick feud has reached the point where Selznick is sending Joan reproachful letters, accusing her of ingratitude. And Joan is thinking of writing to her boss, reminding him that he promised her a bonus after "Rebecca." And where is it? . . . Garbo is negotiating to buy Omar Kiam's (the designer) house in Brentwood. When Greta

MY DAY: Heroism Needs A Better Goal

By Eleanor Roosevelt.

NEW YORK, Thursday—Yesterday was almost entirely given over to personal affairs. Two people joined me at 9:30 and went as far as the entrance to the building where the United States Committee for the Care of European Children was meeting, in order to tell me some of their difficulties in attempted aid to liberal publishers and editors in Europe today.

I tried on some clothes, practically finished my Christmas shopping (except for the inevitable last things which keep popping up) and was home at my apartment for lunch. Three of my young cousins, whom I see rather rarely, were with me for a delightful visit.

After a little more shopping in the afternoon, I went to see Mrs. Samuel Barlow, who is very anxious that we should do a little more effective relief work along certain lines. I hope very much that it may be possible to work it out, for when you look at the newspapers, you realize how ruthless present conditions seem to have made people in the war-torn countries.

There is hardly a ripple when one group wipes out an opposition group, so you cannot help feeling that it is necessary to keep alive the desire of people to be merciful and to help to alleviate suffering.

I dined rather late with some very delightful people at a French restaurant where the food is certainly superlatively good. The conversation was good too, and I enjoyed the evening.

Today I am gathering up the threads of all the unfinished shopping and attending to such unpleasant details as a dentist appointment.

I wonder if you feel as I do when I turn on the radio every morning to listen to the news from Berlin and London. It seems to me that those boys sent out from Germany to destroy innocent people in England, and the other boys of the R. A. F. rising from the ground in their planes, trying to drive back the invaders, must occasionally want to rebel at the destruction which it is their patriotic duty to create.

Of course, for both of them, military objectives are marked on their maps. But they know that it isn't possible to be absolutely accurate and there must be moments when facing the actual results of their work must be difficult.

At least, the boys in the R. A. F. can feel that they are fighting against great odds. Just as the Spanish aviators in the Loyalist cause performed extraordinary feats, these English boys, because of the odds against them, prove their extraordinary gallantry over and over again. We, who watch them and know what their victory means to civilization, must pay them the tribute of gratitude and admiration.

Whenever one dies, something good is lost to the future. We women, who are conservers of the race, must weep that so much gallantry and high-hearted purpose could not be of greater benefit to man.

A Girl With Too Much Ego Soon Becomes Friendless

By Caroline Chatfield.

A young school girl came to see us the other day asking advice on cultivating a pleasant personality. She was pretty, well-dressed and alert. Every sentence she spoke showed where her trouble lay; she couldn't see the forest of people about her for looking at the tree that was herself. She explained at great length she always did more than her part in every relationship in life but was always shortchanged. She had names, dates, places to prove that nobody gave her a break. She was beginning to suspect that her personality was a fault.

"You are satisfied with what you see in the mirror, aren't you?" "Yes, I suppose so—in a way." "You make good grades in your classes, don't you?" "Yes, I'm on the honor roll." "You read and keep up with what's going on in the world, don't you?" "Indeed, I do. Mother thinks I read too much."

"You know how to dance, skate, swim, play games, don't you?" "Yes, but the trouble is getting somebody to play with. That's the reason I'm here. There's something wrong and I can't find out what it is."

So we get down to the disagreeable business of playing truth, always a dangerous game, too, for nobody likes truth unless it flatters. But we told the poor child the truth: that she was egotistic, egotistic, egotistic, which was more ego than people would put up with. And by the process of elimination we proved our point. She was easy on the eyes, had plenty of sense, she was accomplished and wanted friends, yet with all she was friendless. Why? Because she had the ingrowing naught, ingrowing heart. And so are we all friendless when we grow in instead of out.

It doesn't matter one iota how we got that way. The world won't accept our excuses for being boring which we are when we talk about ourselves habitually. The world won't accept our excuses for being selfish, which we are when we think only of ourselves. The world won't even listen to us when we try to excuse ourselves for having no friends. The world knows there is no excuse for this state except one: we didn't put out.

CAROLINE CHATFIELD.

Japan Shuns Mere Fun

Fun for its own sake will have no part in the new way of life in Japan, according to the setup proclaimed in Tokyo by the Kono Cabinet. High-priced food, fine clothing, better quality tobacco and unseemly entertainment will be frowned on. Diversions, offering amusement simply for amusement, without any uplift or physical improvement, will be ruled out entirely or regulated rigidly. All "unnecessary" advertising displays in the streets and along railways and highways will be torn down, particularly if they mar scenic beauty. Permitted entertainment will be concentrated on the physical and cultural growth of the people.

Those Cramps in the Legs That Interrupt Sleeping

By Dr. William Brady.

Many persons past middle age complain of muscle spasms or cramps in the legs, occurring in the night, waking them from sleep or keeping them from sleeping. In some instances the cramp is so painful that the victim has to get out of bed and massage or exercise the legs for some time to get relief. In a few cases the cramps are so severe that the victim is afraid to go to bed at all, but at all night, having discovered that in that position the cramps are less likely to come.

One reader gets relief by covering head with bedclothes and re-breathing the air a few minutes. Another buries face in pillow and re-breathes the air for a few minutes. A man 80 years old who had suffered with leg cramps at night began wearing tight garters at night and suffered no more cramps. A woman found relief by wearing woolen army socks at night. A man found relief by lying on back with feet one foot apart and turning toes inward (pigeon-toed) as far as possible and holding the feet in that position from 15 to 30 seconds.

Calcium feeding has brought prolonged relief to many sufferers from night cramps. Fifteen grains of calcium gluconate or calcium lactate or calcium chloride or dicalcium phosphate night and morning, for a week or two, best taken after meals. Or, a pleasant, nonirritating combination of calcium gluconate (six grains) and dicalcium phosphate (nine grains) may be taken in the form of a wafer, in which there is also enough vitamin D to insure assimilation of the calcium.

In 15 cases of night cramps reported by Drs. H. K. Moss and L. G. Hermann quinine proved uniformly beneficial. The usual dose of quinine for these cases is three grains of quinine sulfate three times a day. The quinine should be taken regularly for several weeks. Sometimes the cramps recur after the quinine is discontinued, but if the regular three grains three times a day routine is resumed the cramps presently cease again.

The excellent remedial effect of quinine in the peculiar "muscle bound" condition known as myotonia, a kind of momentary rigidity or spasm which causes a hesitation or inability to make an intentional movement, especially under stress of excitement, suggested the use of quinine as a relief for night cramps. The usual dose of quinine for control of

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Weak Ankles.

I run over the heels of my shoes, either from weak ankles or weak arches. Can you give me any advice to correct this? (Miss T. C.)

Answer: Every step you take in walking is good for the weakness, if you wear low broad heels or no heels, and soles with inside lines parallel, and flaring out. The dancing and going barefoot or with only moccasins or soft sandals, is strengthening to ankles and arches. Send 10 cents and 1-cent stamped envelope bearing your address for booklet, "Care of the Feet."

You have a knack of making medical questions clear. Thanks to your explanation of certain points a suit the writer was about to bring against an internist and two surgeons was discontinued. One could wish more members of your profession shared your knack. (W. T.)

Debutantes Feted By Mrs. Barfield

An interesting affair of yesterday afternoon was the tea at which Mrs. Forrest Barfield entertained at her home on Andrews drive, honoring a duo of attractive debutantes, Misses Jean Pentecost and Barbara Indell.

A handsome point of Venise lace cloth covered the tea table, which was centered with a square silver epergne containing large iridescent silver and red balls. Flanking the arrangement were silver candlesticks holding burning red tapers. Red iridescent bells hung from the handsome crystal chandelier placed above the table. Marking the guests' covers were tiny red and silver Christmas trees. Decorating the buffet was a silver bowl containing an arrangement of silver and red poinsettias. White vases containing white roses and red carnations were used for decoration in the living room.

Guests were Mrs. E. L. McNaughton, sister of the hostess, and Misses Martha Merrill, Helen Randall, Mary Virginia McConnell, Olive Bell Davis, Ann Garrett, Jeanette Estes, and Margaret Winship.

Atlanta Films Again Packed With Thrills

War, Nazis, South Seas, Comedy Themes for Entertainment.

By LEE ROGERS, Motion Picture Editor.

War and Nazi methods are again the basis for the best films of the week. "Escape" packs suspense and a good story plus an excellent supporting cast for Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor. "Escape to Glory" packs thrills as a Nazi sub stalks a refugee ship through a fog bank.

"Seven Sinners" offers a view of more than just Dietrich legs, supported by a fine interpretation by Broderick Crawford of an ex-gob with his love for the navy stronger than his worship of a honey-toned entertainer, who almost snags the navy's prize bachelor. "Earning Out Loud" is Lum and Abner in the movies.

NORMA SHEARER, ROBERT TAYLOR, STAR AT LOEW'S. Delightfully mixing suspense with a slightly off-color love story and political doctrines, "Escape" is playing currently at Loew's.

Norma Shearer and Robert Taylor have the star roles, but the acting honors go to the supporting cast, which numbers some of the film industry's best character players—youth and old.

The film sticks close to Ethel Vance's novel about the Actress Emmy Ritter who returns to her native Germany to sell the family home and is condemned to death as a traitor when the sale money is deposited in New York, thus violating the law against taking money out of the Reich. In prison she is befriended by a young doctor who remembers seeing her on the stage. He gives her a drug to produce a state of apparent death and the old family servant and the son contrive to get her from the prison in a coffin, even calling on the countess, mistress of the Nazi general, for aid.

Only where necessary for the suspense to pictorially tell what would be the book is the script changed. The film story emphasizes entertainment and doesn't try to beat propaganda into the audience. The love story is restrained but exists between Norma Shearer (the general's mistress) and Taylor (the son).

Philip Dorn, an actor import from Holland, begins for himself a promising Hollywood career with his interpretation of the doctor. Conrad Veidt makes the jealous general cold and calculating with little spark of love for humans or Hitler. Nazimova provides the central character around whom the entire story must revolve. She is Taylor's mother. Felix Bressart's performance as the family servant should also be singled out.

"ESCAPE TO GLORY" PACKED WITH THRILLS

Seldom does the film industry offer a more compact assortment of thrills than is presented in Columbia's "Escape to Glory," a story of American refugees from various orders of society who are crowded together on the last British boat to sail before war is declared with Germany.

At sea, the boat captain keeps a rendezvous with British naval vessels and his ship is armed. They are stalked by a Nazi sub with passenger expecting the fatal explosion at any moment. Nerves grow tense. The melting pot is at work again.

How the sub is finally disposed of after a game of hide and seek in a fog bank provides a thrilling climax to 80 minutes of suspense at the Rialto this week.

Pat O'Brien and Constance Bennett have the star parts with support from John Holliday, Melville Cooper, Alan Baxter, Edgar Buchanan, Marjorie Gatenon, Jessie Ruesley and Stanley Logan.

DIETRICH DAZZLES NAVAL OFFICER

Three things are noteworthy in reporting on "Seven Sinners," now at the Paramount. Otherwise it is a very mediocre picture with heavy-handed editing.

First, the picture is a story whose legs so much have been written, discloses other parts of her anatomy. (2) Broderick Crawford gives a fine interpretation of the ex-gob with the doglike devotion to the tropical night spot entertainer, but who in the end deserts her to prevent her marriage to the navy's most eligible young officer. (3) The barroom brawl in which bodies are draped around chandeliers is amusing rough-house.

The story is laid in the South Seas. Dietrich is a cafe entertainer who attracts men like sugar does flies. She has been chased off every island in the South Seas. This is the woman John Wayne, slow, drawing and unimpressive, falls in love with and from whom he is saved by Crawford.

Billy Gilbert, Albert Dekker, Reginald Denny and Samuel Hinds are in the cast.

LUM AND ABNER STAR AT CAPITOL

Lum and Abner are featured in their first screen picture called "Earning Out Loud" at the Capitol. The picture is one of the best money-makers currently throughout the nation and gets its big play from the radio popularity of the two stars.

The film will continue at the Capitol through next Wednesday giving Lum and Abner fans a chance to see their favorites on the screen for the first time. Naturally the film is a comedy.

Praise Given Singers for Marietta Show

Performance of 'Merry Widow' Is Called Professional.

By MOELLE HORTON YOUNG.

MAR. TTA, Ga., Nov. 29.—The home-town talent of Marietta put on a performance of Lehár's "The Merry Widow" last night that was so attractive and so professional that it would make any metropolitan company sit up and take notice. The production was sponsored by the Junior Welfare League and given to a packed house at the Brumby Recreation Center.

Tom Brumby deserves unlimited praise for the fine way in which he directed the work. Not only did he furnish the musical background at the electric organ, but he was the human dynamo that had trained the choruses and soloists alike, and it was his untiring enthusiasm that revealed to Mariettans that they could do things even they themselves never dreamed of.

Guest Artist. Frances Campbell, Atlanta soprano and only "guest artist" in the show, made a most attractive widow. Her acting ability and her voice were both well suited for the role, and she made quite a "hit" with the audience.

Edmund Hughes, who had never before sung a solo publicly, was an excellent Prince Danilo and sang and acted like a trouper. Ruth Ogden as Baroness Popoff and Edmund Downing as Vicomte de Joldon were both valuable contributors to the success of the work. But the boy who "stole the show" was Rowan Williams, in the part of Baron Popoff. That boy is a "natural," and he was one of the main factors in making the work one of the best amateur shows I have ever seen.

The girls of Maxine's, headed by Virginia Tift Brumby as Zozo, were a sensation, particularly in their "can-can" dance.

All the ensemble numbers were good. The entire cast acted like professionals. The costumes were colorful and the stage settings were attractive.

Mariettans must feel proud today for two reasons: first, that so much happiness will be brought to underprivileged children through the financial success of the show and, second, that they have such a wealth of talent right at home.

The Career Life Vs. a Private Life Meets Its Ultimate Test

FINAL INSTALLMENT.

"I've certainly learned the hard way," Glory replied. "Mark was right all along. I'm not the type for a career. I was just a silly star-struck girl, but now that I know how little real happiness success can bring, I'm amazed at myself."

"Mark doesn't approve of your career?"

"Oh no. He never has."

"Then you will give it up?"

Glory's face grew sad again. "Of course, if Mark and I are married, but if we aren't... I'll probably go on."

"By the way, where is this Spencer? I want to meet him."

"He's in court."

"Why aren't you there, too?" her father asked.

"I haven't been going because Mark didn't approve."

He smiled. "The more I hear about this Mark the better I like him."

Glory laughed. "He said if he were my father he'd have made me come home long ago."

"Maybe I should have," Henry Stevens admitted. "But I thought it was better for you to work out your own salvation. I never dreamed you'd make a success of it."

She touched his arm. "Daddy, can't we go over to the trial now?"

"Do you think it's wise?"

"I've got to know," she said. "It will make it easier for Mark than to have to tell me himself."

"All right, then. Let's go."

The jury filed in a hush swept over the courtroom. Glory watched, listened, saw the foreman of the jury rise. She felt as if she herself were on trial. For upon this man's words her life depended as well as Marian's.

Tensed, white from the strain, Glory waited. Time seemed to stand still. Then she heard, "Not guilty."

"Mark!" Glory cried, and not heeding the curious stares of the crowd, she forced her way to the front of the courtroom.

"Mark, darling!"

Marian was free! Glory and Mark were to be married the following Saturday. Her father was here and would stay for the wedding! Everything seemed too perfect to be true. The only unpleasant note was when Glory told Scottie Weston that she could not sign the new contract. Scottie apparently had no idea that she would really refuse the contract, which stipulated that she was to be starred in three pictures a year.

He beamed at her across his desk. "Okay, baby, here you are! Sign on the dotted line."

"But I can't sign it, Scottie. Mark and I are going to be married."

"Sure, I know. So what?"

"Mark doesn't want me to be a career woman," Glory explained. "He'll get over it. He certainly wouldn't want you to turn down the chance of a lifetime, would he?"

"You don't understand," Glory told him gently. "You see, Scottie, I don't want to go on. I want to be a wife, not a glamor girl."

A shadow crossed Scottie's face. "After all I've done for you! I can't believe it, Glory. I just can't believe you'd let me down!"

She went to his side. "Oh, Scottie, darling! I can't help the way I feel. Ever since the premiere I've felt differently about it. It seemed so artificial to me that night. So cheap. A career isn't what I want after all. It just doesn't mean anything to me."

"You're crazy!" Scottie barked. "You must be! Why, every other girl in the world would give her eyeteeth for a contract like this! Look at it, Glory! Three pictures a year. You'll be the biggest star in Hollywood. You'll have the whole world at your feet!"

"You don't understand," Glory cried. "I used to think that was what I wanted, but I was wrong. This is a swell time to change your mind!"

"I want to get married, Scottie, and have a private life, not a public one! Ever since the premiere Mark was waiting for her and the very sight of him wiped away all her troubled thoughts. 'Scottie's furious with me,' she reported.

Mark kissed the tip of her nose. "He'll get over it."

"Do you really think so, darling? He said he wouldn't even come to our wedding."

"Don't worry," Mark assured her. "I've known Scottie a long time. He'll be there."

And so at last Saturday arrived. They were married at four o'clock in the little church in Glendale. Glory in her white tulle dress and veil, radiant with happiness, carrying calla lilies in her arms.

She listened to the minister's words as if she were in a dream. "Do you take this man?"

And Mark's response, tender and full of emotion... "With this ring I thee wed..."

The tiny circle of diamonds was slipped on her finger.

And then Mark's arms around her. His lips pressed against hers. "My darling!"

A shower of rose petals fell from above as they stood before the altar. The organ pealed its vibrant chorus. Sun streamed through the stained-glass windows.

Mark's sister was there. His father had gone to Honolulu, but he cabled his congratulations. Glory's father was present, and the presence of Max Cavell and Van Lingham made it evident her desertion had been forgiven by her director and the designer of the lovely gowns that had aided in her success. And Helen, dear Helen, who Glory noticed was actually crying. Then as she went towards her friend she saw another face at the back of the church... It was Scottie Weston's.

Scottie came towards her holding out his hand. "Okay, Glory! You win. I hope you'll be happy."

"Thank you, Scottie. I'm so glad you came!"

They were on the train, waving their last good-bys. Mark had taken a drawing-room and Glory could see the rapidly disappearing lights through the window.

"No regrets?" Mark asked anxiously.

She turned shining blue eyes to his. "No regrets."

And there were none in her heart for the career she had renounced. She was no longer Glory Stevens, the actress, Glory Stevens, the glamour girl. Safe in her husband's arms, Glory was content to be—just Mrs. Mark Spencer!

She twisted the diamond wedding ring on her finger, "I'll make up happy!" Mark promised.

"It seems like a dream," Glory said slowly. "I was so afraid that something would separate us."

"But nothing did."

"And now we're married. Really married!"

"I've loved you from the first, Glory."

"Dear Mark!"

He drew her closer into his arms and the train sped on through the black night, bearing them far away from the winking, sparkling lights which marked Hollywood.

THE END.

Flying Fort Is Due Here This Morning

Big Bomber Takes Off From Field in California.

A four-motored Army "flying fortress" took off from Hamilton Field, near San Francisco, at 12:20 o'clock (Atlanta time) this morning for a non-stop flight to Atlanta. California Air Corps officials reported. The ship is due to arrive here at 10 o'clock this morning.

Piloted by Captain T. W. Steed, the giant plane carries a crew of 10. From Atlanta, it will continue on to the tip of the Florida peninsula, and then head back to California by way of the Gulf of Mexico.

The flight was described as a "navigation check flight" to provide training for Army navigators. The bomber is attached to the 89th Bombardment Squadron based at March field, California.

Duce Changes High Command For 'Victory'

Direction of Greek Campaign Further Centered in Rome.

ROME, Nov. 29.—(P)—Premier Mussolini followed a shakedown of his high command with a massing of new troops in Albania tonight for counter-attacks designed to turn the tide of victory toward the Fascists in their month-old war with Greece.

With the appointment of General Alfredo Guzzoni as under-secretary of war, Il Duce further centered here the direction of a campaign which the Rome radio said had the express mission of "liquidating the Greek incident."

Guzzoni, former commander of troops in Africa and in Albania, prior to the Greek war, is expected to be a liaison man between the high command and General Ubaldo Soddu, commander of the Italian forces in Albania. Guzzoni also will be vice chief of staff.

The Rome radio, which said the Greek advance in Albania has "fizzled out," asserted that the new forces in Albania had been given their task of turning back the Greeks "without German aid."

Navy Will Use Old Shipyard To Speed Work

Orders Are Given for Six Cruisers Costing $113,822,280.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(P)—The Navy acted today to bring a long-idle Philadelphia shipyard into production after President Roosevelt disclosed that steps were under way to speed up construction of 115 new destroyers.

Navy officials contracted for $9,500,000 worth of new facilities at the Cramp Shipbuilding Company and at the same time placed orders with the company for construction of six cruisers to cost $113,822,280. The shipyard has been out of production since 1923.

The contracts raised to 54 the number of cruisers now on order for the Navy, which has 37 in commission. They completed, too, award of all authorized tonnage in the current cruiser program. No details of the contracts were disclosed, and their probable delivery dates also were withheld.

Mr. Roosevelt's announcement that efforts were being made to expedite the destroyer construction program stirred conjecture as to whether the nation's growing but heavily loaded shipbuilding facilities would be further expanded.

At his press conference, the chief executive said he had referred the problem to William S. Knudsen, of the Defense Commission, and declared that the original delivery dates set for some of the destroyers for which the Navy let contracts last September 9 were much too far off.

Mr. Roosevelt quickly made it plain his desire to speed up destroyer building had no relation to the question of making more such vessels available to Great Britain.

The Navy has a total of 165 destroyers building or under construction. Some officials said that, while additional shipyards would hasten their construction, the question of additional trained workmen still would be a problem.

Chautemps in U.S. Urges Friendship

JERSEY CITY, Nov. 29.—(P)—Camille Chautemps, former premier of France, arrived today on an "unofficial" and unidentified mission after a four-month voyage by hardships and embarrassment at the hands of Spanish and British officials.

Pale and hesitating, Chautemps, 55, declined to discuss "political matters" but said he wanted to say this to the American people: "Americans, do not misjudge France. The soul of the people has not changed. I am quite convinced that France will raise itself to its old position and I hope that America will help."

By American help, he said through an interpreter, he meant that all France wanted now was "confidence and friendship" from the United States.

U.S. May Probe Radio Industry

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(P)—A disclosure today that the Justice Department is considering an anti-trust investigation of the radio industry capped a number of developments bearing on broadcasting.

Coincident with disclosure of the projected anti-trust investigation, the Federal Communications Commission completed arrangements for oral arguments next Monday and Tuesday on the report of its "Monopoly" committee investigating network broadcasting.

On Capitol Hill, Senator Gurney, Republican, South Dakota, said that "proposed" FCC regulations affecting network broadcasting would "strangle, if not impose a death sentence upon the established networks."

President of the National Association of Broadcasters, declared "it would be most unfortunate if the high standard of radio entertainment and information now enjoyed by the American public was jeopardized by restrictions sought to be imposed without warrant of law or need."

Army Chieftain Charges Rent 'Profiteering'

Public Aid Urged To Curb 'Unfortunate, Unfair Situation.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(P)—General George C. Marshall called on the public tonight to aid the army in curbing the "profiteering" in rents on housing for officers' families.

In a radio progress report on the defense program the chief of staff said the army had found that in some localities rents at first doubled and then, in certain areas, tripled. "Apparently on the basis of 'charge as much as the traffic will bear,'" he said.

"This situation is unfortunate and very unfair," he said, "and I can only hope that state and municipal authorities will bring sufficient pressure to bear to suppress this form of profiteering." He did not identify the localities beyond saying the rent increases occurred near army concentration centers, which are being established in many sections, particularly in the south and southeast.

Japanese Grant Recognition to Wang Regime

Chinese Blast Train, Killing 150, on Eve of Treaty.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 30.—(Sat.)—(UP)—Japan today granted formal recognition to the Japanese-sponsored regime of former Chinese Premier Wang Ching-wei when a treaty between the two powers was signed in Nanking.

Spokesman for Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek of the Chungking government immediately described the action as "illegal and meaningless," while British and American informants said they were certain that neither Washington nor London would have any formal relations with the new regime.

The recognition ceremonies were carried out against a background of Chinese Nationalist sabotage, which included the dynamiting of a railway train between here and the "restored national capital" yesterday, in which an estimated 150 persons were killed, and disorders in the International Settlement here in protest against the Nanking ceremonies.

Chinese shops failed to open for business this morning, presumably because of reports of Japanese anti-Nanking student demonstrations, and a large number of Chinese constables of the settlement force went on strike.

Anti-British Views Denied By Kennedy

Envoy Reiterates His Opposition to U. S. Entry in War.

NEW YORK, Nov. 29.—(UP)—Joseph P. Kennedy, United States ambassador to Britain, tonight described as "nonsense" reports that "I do not expect Britain to win the war," and reiterated his stand against American entry into the conflict.

"What I am concerned with is keeping America out of the war," the ambassador said in reply to a request for a restatement of his position. "Everyone has known from the beginning that I have been against American entry into the war."

"I have never made anti-British statements or said on or off the record—that I do not expect Britain to win the war. I have never made in this country any statement which I did not make to four or five members of the British cabinet before I left London."

Calling for public co-operation in a "personal observance" of Atlanta traffic laws and strict enforcement of safety measures, about 60 representatives of civic clubs yesterday decided to submit to their organizations a four-point program to reduce the mounting death rate.

The action was taken as Atlanta was dropped officially from the National Safety Council's honor list of cities showing the largest reduction percentage in accidents and deaths.

Local leaders assembled at the call of Hurd J. Crain, traffic safety chairman for the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and passed resolutions calling on the senior and junior chambers to lead civic clubs of Fulton and DeKalb counties into session to form a joint traffic safety organization pledged to lead educational campaigns.

Although no definite action was taken other than on the observance and enforcement portion of the four-point program, it appeared to be the sentiment of those present that they would submit the other three points to their respective organizations asking indorsement.

The three other points are: (1) Development of a master traffic plan for the metropolitan area; (2) Codification of existing traffic laws in Atlanta to simplify observance and enforcement; and (3) Establishment of an engineering division, said to be the weakest link in the local traffic program.

F.D.R. Plans Group Formed A Trip Soon; For Honoring May Use Plane P.T.A. Founder

Roosevelt Has Never Flown Since He Became President.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 29.—(AP) President Roosevelt excited both surprise and speculation today by telling reporters that he was planning a trip next week to an unannounced destination and that he might employ a plane to bring him back if an emergency developed and he could not reach Washington within 12 hours by train.

It was thought he might voyage into the Caribbean to look over defense establishments. There also was some talk of a continental defense tour.

His announcement about a possible plane trip developed a good-natured exchange with reporters, the peak of which was reached when someone asked:

"When was the last time you were up in the air, Mr. President?"

Joining in the laughter, Mr. Roosevelt said it was eight years ago when he flew from Albany to Chicago to accept his first presidential nomination. He had flown many times before that, however, as assistant secretary of the navy during the World War.

Asked about the secret service legend, he replied the service had never asked him not to fly, but had jokingly informed him that if he did he would need an air armada to carry secret service agents along.

150 Cats Seek Status of Strike To Win Honors By Plumbers In Show Here Is Unchanged

Owners Brush Coats Until Animals Are Almost Exhausted.

Cats are nervous animals. They are indifferent, strut their stuff for a certain length of time—then turn the show over to their owners, most of whom are women.

But 150 of them landed in Atlanta yesterday from all over the south to vie for honors in the Cotton States Cat Show. They sat in blue satin-lined cages, or cages lined with paper, or cages with simple wrapping paper on the bottoms. They slept on soft, fluffy pillows or on the hard cage floor. Their owners pulled them out, showed them off, and brushed and washed their coats until the animals were almost exhausted.

The show at 101 Cone street is conducted under the specifications of the Cat Fanciers of America. Mrs. Foster Prather is chairman, and Mrs. J. H. Revington, of Bristol, Tenn., an authority on cats, is judging the entrants.

The classes include domestic or short-hair, house cats and domestic cats of solid colors or tabby cats. They are classified in three parts: kittens, in three age groups; cats which have never won a blue ribbon in any show; and open, with open and novice competition for blue, red and white ribbons, special awards and winner ribbons.

Some Types of Work on Slum Clearance Projects Continue.

Status of the strike of about 100 plumbers and steamfitters of the Loftis Plumbing & Heating Company, Atlanta contractors, remained unchanged yesterday pending arrival of officials of the International Plumbers' Union.

Other types of construction work were continuing on the Clark Howell and Capitol slum clearance projects, and officials minimized the effect of the strike on their completion. The draft reception center at Fort McPherson, another Loftis contract, was unaffected.

Mott Gormley, business agent of the local plumbers' union, was expecting soon to confer here with George Masterston, president, and Richard P. Walsh, general organizer of the international. Both were in New Orleans attending the American Federation of Labor convention.

The strike originated in employment of an Alabama union plumber as superintendent of the Loftis crews.
